OF THE ALWAYS

Part One

The always on your hands

are in your hands, the lost grammar pf Gan Eden a language made exclusively of pronouns and the names of things were still asleep.

Part Two

The advantages of blundering midnight beneath the streets of the forests cloacal cathedral

stained glass translucent leaves because they fell and the trees' amber ruin be fine spectacle

leaf veins of innocence.

Part Three

As if a window on a falcon open the way
light lures citizens by surfaces to sin

swim slide glide sunwards into the Danger

I hear the radiants talking to me at least I think it's me.

Part Four

Indecisive disclosure a mind without a zipper the purse-seine savages the sea and there were words in it this time, Antietam,

bone,
this time Actium

never now.

History is a lizard basking in the sun.

Part Five

Each part the history of the whole world each line

an epic

a movie in 4-D waiting for the aisles to clear when angels saunter by to sell those special cigarettes—

you have to see them, it's not enough to listen to me, the fives are strife

of one color or another, the girl has a sword clutched between her knees it's as real as a cartoon a word's a proffer invest in it a word's a door

yank it open and disappear.

Part Six

The evidence accumulates.

Sun on the terrace on a different planet we have not yet organized.

When you get worried recite Saint Paul:
Do not accommodate yourself to the system but renew the way you think and then he's young again old house new skin badminton court out back two maidens clad in white a flying shuttlecock.

Part Seven

Because it still is there it still is them.

In the movie nothing moves but colored light—

everything you think you see is me.

And Pilate wept his wife clutched her temples the Sabbath crept upon them wrapped in ignorance to give them ease.

Give them peace.

Part Eight

If only I could sing that purple kaddish for the living but none of the words taught me tune—

the always
was still waiting

still heavy on my palms fruit overripe

here, I give it to you sir or madam on the other star

I mean coming down the stairs.

Part Nine

Equivalence is all—

find something you're equal to and sleep with it where else could dreams come from or come true?

And when I say you it's art I mean.
who else would put up with my prattle?

You were on an island in the Indies reluctant to be

O be there not but it's hard to leave a place you aren't really at.

Part Ten

Verbum ut picture

See through what I say to what it is saying,

tell me to tell you a wider story,
one with monsters in it things to look at
but bel repair,

a mother who grew flowers from her secret places and you have to understand because I don't,

I'm just an ambassador from the night making girlish scribbles in my father's ledger book some words intruding on your breath.

1 September 2014

Smoke signals from no Indians drumbeats of the nobody there.
We live in fear because we hope, old wagon with a broken wheel.

SELKIE

My mother was a seal.

Or of that kindred.

Fact. Shiny black soft deep skin
kept in the closet

vanished when she passed away and all the songs and stories daddy told me of the sea and who comes out of it at twilight some day and how they kindly live with us until we really are,

and all the while the way she looked as she listened too, her famous not-quite-smile on her lips.

Don't put your dirty in the papers.
Enough to regulate the time of day by what you say when no one's listening—

beaver at the dam hawk on your head who knew life could be so simple, and as they say the less said the better.

[for Tarots:]

New names for the court cards:

Man of Wands

Woman of Wands

Boy of Wands

Girl of Wands

for old and young are different genders.

And we must move from kingship to manhood.
queen to womanhood, prince to boy, princess to girl.

Oh go ahead and call them K and Q we know who they really are and I am the Man of Wands.

1.IX.14

The woman's voice from far away turns out to be a radio, internet, a squeal in alt.
and then silence, the signal lost.
I'm left alone with the almost heard

Year after year we have watched the green world grow up through the machinery of ours. Where the engine was the flowers are—they tell us where we're going and on what strange road.
