Glimpses

Duncan Puce Hanrahan

Bard College

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.bard.edu/senproj_f2017

Part of the Poetry Commons

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial-No Derivative Works 4.0 License.

Recommended Citation

This Open Access work is protected by copyright and/or related rights. It has been provided to you by Bard College's Stevenson Library with permission from the rights-holder(s). You are free to use this work in any way that is permitted by the copyright and related rights. For other uses you need to obtain permission from the rights-holder(s) directly, unless additional rights are indicated by a Creative Commons license in the record and/or on the work itself. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@bard.edu.
Glimpses

Senior Project submitted to The Division of Languages & Literature

By Duncan “Puce” Hanrahan

Annandale-on-Hudson, New York December, 2017
This is dedicated to two.

Michael Ives

an advisor, the man who kept me in this college

&

Cole Amorello

(1998-2016)

a part of me more than any other
CONTENTS

<table> <thead>
<tr>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr> </thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PART I</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>awn.................................................................</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>glimpses i....................................................</td> <td>5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>be a lamp......................................................</td> <td>6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>waning...........................................................</td>
<td>7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>projector.....................................................</td> <td>8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>from.............................................................</td>
<td>9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>funny fever...................................................</td> <td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>stale............................................................</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>diary entry...................................................</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>it is fall.....................................................</td> <td>13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PART II</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>glimpses ii...................................................</td> <td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>our mother....................................................</td> <td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>hum...............................................................</td> <td>17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>the nature of sinking....................................</td> <td>18</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>to “13 Ghosts II”............................................</td> <td>19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>skyview apartment — fifth floor..................</td> <td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>glimpses iii..................................................</td> <td>21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in misery i trust a sheet.............................</td> <td>22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>weatherworn...................................................</td> <td>23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PART III</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wednesday.....................................................</td>
<td>25-62</td>
</tr> </tbody>
</table>
mind fractured and out crawled a man he strode and he waved back the dark carrying a torch that said spirit in the licking flame a neon sign diffused through fog loud on the highway so a rumbling truck burdened by its freight, power-wiping bucket loads off its glass eyes, could see a mile out and know to carry on through the umber for at least until the flame chokes on stark cold and quashes and the umber seeps off through the night like brown dye in ink occasionally along the way in the bottom depth of dark the truck stops and the driver steps out to curse the road and hike his pants he could spit up vile, thrash, and shout but there won’t be another light until the mind fractures and out crawls a man with a torch glimpses

i.
moments of lucidity are when the sky shows itself absolute a word stripped of its signifier dismantling the platonic form allowing perception of the sky as this sky as it is wiping a slate clean of a noun phrase and its noun components my brief glimpses into something i’d call madness are the world of things baring itself naked and harsh be a lamp

i.
the soul centers the fabric’s orbit and oxygenates a void bodies being textiles that will crumple and fold suggest evidence of a nucleus radiating an echo of the primal glow ii.

an iris gossamer shades a halogen bulb stamps out a phosphene imprint that reads a flush of midnight mauve lit by its soul exudate iii.

the iris meditates on its incandescence on a strict regimen of copper wire locking form to films and wisps and the practiced purple blooms into amethyst waning

interstates to madras and salem and nashville jammed with herds of old people flocking to the path of totality some with radios some in silence one talking to his wife this is my last chance to see the moon cover the sun and then my brain will close and a dark disc block all light from me he will turn over, vibrate emulsify into a milk slip through the molecules his body an icy rock souls incubate in some ambrosial compound vibrate and cook until it quivers and the soul feels out the physics of the space through its mechanics it realizes it’s in a pond and at that moment its frequency amplifies and vaporizes into a transient tone received by a melody of stars and planets its malleable transmissions tune to a wavelength pre-package of quirks and flavors and certain spins traceable such that the degrees of the planets in relation to the sun and earth are charted by certain inclinations by curious sciences and alternative measures to draw the schematics of stardust Robinson Jeffers writes that man is a nerve ending of God his mission to find and to feel If man is a nerve ending of God his home is pain and pleasure and his operation to inform the neuron and if one were to meet it what a neuron it would be for it would feed on avarice of the penthouse broker and generosity of the street walking alms grace of the monk in movement weight of men at war nothing but impermanence the pain sweeping across a body as weeping sweeps across the world each of us plays the other but in shifts and must these in ratio concoct one neutral sense born of feeling all things a comprehension utterly infinite the nerves assemble into life’s color the furnace of a white hot neuron to which the sole response is wonderment it comes from a beholding of being somewhere in the back alleys of human interactions shaded rooting seedy dealings two eighth graders instigated an exchange of money for terror a bill for a bag of bud ill omen of purple nug chewed up in a slide damp and dusted stifled cackles impish precession celebrating the inoculation of a psyche laced with wet commanding a boy into a morgue of rotten cypress leaves like licking flames curling branches into wrought iron grafting a metal web of gates one thirteen-year-old sentenced another to a mentally ill cacophony of cars like liquid beatles stuttering down stop motion road the kid’s mind glitching dropping frame rate convinced his body is a piece of silly putty stretching and he’s going to snap into a film of hyper realities a human son of a father all fours on the lawn eating grass like bubblegum chewing cud like human cow a leather strap grows around its neck and sprouts a bell that gives one ding that grows into reverberations triggering the body to stretch like silly putty and snap every day for the rest of a human life and scattered throughout a mile radius four parents’ hearts skip a beat unsure why seven faces fashioned from flat planks congregated like aimless debris drawn into orbit of mars or some inhospitable gaseous sphere eighty percent anoxia fifteen percent horse tranquilizer five percent waking sleep passing a year of life skin softened into cushions eyes sinking into tunnels into dim caves calcium bodies absorbing stimulus saline solution seeping through pores of a sponge stable flatline of cartilage wretched, clawing fingernails grow as a fungus where there is no light yet something ferments diary entry

it creeps into the peripheries the smell of crack cropping up on pallid fish one at 69th st station one wobbling straight out of fishtown down the car on the MFL a leather woman like a drawing of a human on a morass eyes marked with crumpled plastic bags a body of hide and rubber tubes drawn in a picture of desperation tracings of the street’s shops she offers tires where there are no wheels a whole town misplaced on the map peopled with cracked streets derelict houses are cargo boxes home for the doll the dog ripped in half neither loved nor left these people worn into things zoned into recesses
neither loved nor left
it is fall

when the days seem to step your feet for you a diligent march on heavy earth coming into frost trees dry and let their leaves long down

It is Fall
we weep at loss balk at it and wilt into mourning sorrow marked by black a color born in winter's deep night but leaves go without sorrow that's what makes them float and not drop

It is Fall
and there is light to the day though dim and brief and marching into dead cold an acceptance not a forfeiture of things flying south
ii.
all space is positive populated by more than particulates flitting through it a man without eyes doesn’t know color

what do we not know for the lack of an arcane organ our mother

her hello filters from the horizon and you may part your eyes from your vision where she distributes her presence her face shifts through innumerable aesthetics archetypes, stories that cannot be fabricated the entity behind our eyes the neurons sewing dreams that our mother is a metaphor our family a kindred soul arrived at the same place at the same time in an unprecedented scheme of all things

she will guide you when you are ready to go in an airport the conveyor belt stirs diseases in slow circles baggage revolves around a life some spend all theirs rearranging dust sentences fabricated from fridge magnets
the nature of sinking

the iris emits light directly proportionate to internal amplitude the ball of the eye

a pure orb sees and cannot help but reflect a mark of death

over the icy night the water in our boat will crystallize into dark freight

we will submerge and fail to breathe

the untwitching eye will only reflect the depth

the nature of sinking is that it’s alright to “13 Ghosts II”

what when the world is a wall settled still from unbreath what when the world seals and carbon dioxide fills its rooms what when the world divorces all pursuit, left alone what when everywhere tells a man he is a chair

what when he wants to reject the pattern but this is the pattern so be it he will sit as other men may be men conjure their own energies artificers of some grapple but for this one man a chair will suffice it calls to him a settling it relieves him of a life the world is outside the chair is right here what when inside a resignation you may sit through life skyview apartment — fifth floor

MAN, 40, wall of windows some records and needle skipping nighttime heavy on this city somewhere in east philly

MAN, 40, framed by celestial vacancy a black blanket woven over one-story buildings his neck must crane to remember warehouse and junkyard patches cut up by gutters

MAN, 40, present a child slowly swallowed its days forgotten punctuated moments practically invisible in a run-on sentence redundant descriptions every entrance into the same room every morning exactly where night left

MAN, 40, no history a bare wall's cornice a table of tacks anonymous possessions no history eyes beholdings a slideshow of irrelevant photographs no history

MAN, 40, ice sings down glass amber slips in logs pop and sputter a flame grows six inches its safety invites a sleep

MAN, 40, a disease coils its roots into a tumor it grows a personality that begs to sink it pumps tar sludges down the blood it sucks fire from the room

MAN, 40, walls bend in and windows shrink to the size of fingernails arrhythmia casts a brick onto his chest manual breathing fear of black lack of dreams fear of soiling the bed going in alone dead phone

MAN, 40, do not disturb sinking down respecting the killer and expecting the elders stockholm syndrome to a poison looking down the cellar peeking through the bulkhead

MAN, 40, familiar basement boiler room hums a lethargy soak into bedrock doors closing and lights pass dim vents seeping closure

MAN, 40, wished for nothing lived for nothing passed to pass a life stretched thin through dark into a plastic tourniquet glimpses

iii.
i’m afraid of the tear in this fabric afraid I can see it and some others can see it and some even slip through uncertain of any way back or of what kind of ride they’re on but there’s a notion that lies innate and speaks in recoilings and blinks and pulls on your organs like ropes in a belfry sounding a signal to flee maybe it’s one long slide you spend a year of your life staring at a machine screw and another being a toasted paint bucket absolutely broken and without faculties as a bucket to decide to stop being the bucket in misery i trust a sheet i’m a quiet thing to die i’m going to tuck my head and go

will you practice someone else’s song

mine has written a rest weatherworn

A Tibetan bowl used to sing ice melting into a pond it sang train tracks and big locomotion shaking the big bay stippled with heavens

it lathed these into copper folds and folds of night a nocturnal year feeding on chemicals

it wove into the bush vines growing into its eye as the bowl sang of underneath the earth

these chemicals saturated until the colors blew out the blacks stained and the white burned through the film its pitch rose to the ring of all things and the bowl sang of nothing now the bowl has been resigned to a windowsill it has rung out and choked this is the spirit of a man clean the bowl take it on a walk so it will sing Wednesday

dawn crept up quickuh than i reckon a horse in a hog race

* an' our Sal's hooves are always salted * she was sold as broke but * she still a Belgian draft y'know

* so we Johansens cleared the briars on then north hill penned 'er an' ran 'er done, up an' back till she was soft fuh saddle an' broke 'er out in pa's style he nevuh flipped the calenduh past 1985 cause by then men got softuh than horses

* switchin from twelve-gauge tuh twenny fuh grouse * pa still loads his Ruger Red
* ovuh unduh and ten ounces heavyuh he kept everythin old as long he could * got his eighty-eight GMC on disc brakes * and the freezuh in the ice house * like the amish nevuh heard of rumspringa * an half up tuh Dresden w'aint wired fer electrics an' you spot then loose hog by the size of then jam it's got stoppt in then street eitha or, dawn crept up early eitha or—i read that in a kirkegard novel kept in the outhouse strange enough always thought outhouse readin should be light and kirkegard got a way of writin solid bricks i swear hes layin bricks not words “Wednesday” is derived from Old English “Wōdnesdæg” and Middle English “Wednesdei,” meaning “day of Wōden,” where “Wōden” is a cognate of the Norse theonym, “Óðinn,” which has been popularly anglicized as Odin.

Epsom salt gel is sometimes applied to horse hooves to draw out infection, reduce inflammation, and alleviate soreness.

An equestrian tames or breaks a horse before it’s safe for riding.

Belgian draft; gigantic horse used for tilling and towing. Notoriously difficult to break.

Johansen is the Scandinavian surname of this farm’s family, most common among Norwegians.

Soft; tired/calmed. An old-fashioned method of breaking a horse is to run it until it’s too tired to buck when the trainer bridles the saddle.

Gauge is the size of a shotgun barrel’s inner diameter, nominally expressed as the number of lead balls each just fitting that diameter required to make a pound. Twelve-gauge shotguns are heavier than twenty-gauge but supply longer range. Over time, upland game hunters favored lighter weight guns with faster handling properties.

The Ruger Red Label was a double barrel shotgun introduced in 1977 and discontinued in 2011. Initially popular among upland hunters as a reliable all-American working man’s tool, it was revered for its craftsmanship, but eventually decried and dropped for its rising manufacturing cost and derivative market price.

Over & Under double barrels gave way to auto-loaders. Many double barrel models were discontinued by most leading distributors in 2014.

Disc brakes have been replaced by dual-circuit hydraulic brakes in contemporary trucks.

Rumspringa is a year-long right of passage for Amish adolescents between 14 and 16 years old during which they experience the world outside their community. It ends when they choose Amish baptism or integration into society over the other.

Dresden is a town (pop. 2,000) in Southern Maine’s Lincoln County and home to this farm.

Either/Or (1843) is the first published work by Danish philosopher, Søren Kierkegaard, which outlines the philosophical structure of a life as the evolution of man’s hedonism into commitment through his stages as a selfish aesthete and as an ethical human being, rent by an encounter with despair.
eitha or, dawn crept up early
* ma down I-two-ninety-five South fuh Portlan' an' Franklin 33 * up I-ninety-five North fuh Banguh, all pitchin markets

* fillin in fuh Katie and Jenna who left the berry patch with warm stroke 36 what we call a first timuh's heat stroke

* made me thinkin of night priuh not half a clock ago 39 ma said let em off the next day that I could take care of market an' pa could fill in too 42 let them birds get a sleep er two pa di'nt say a word he just sat pickin at the table cloth 45 he woulda had me fuh that one tellin me idle hands makin no ends meat 48 don't shoot the shit shoot the cow pa deliberated though said she'd be pitchin in Banguh 51 and Lord'd have Franklin pitch in Portland * on account of him bein an aesthetic

* 'stead of a ethical an' pa teachin him 54 to learn a commitment the earliest mornin demands eitha or, pa din't have near half a hello * to the fewcha folk down there, makes sense 57 * they learned a new language wasn't his english plus he'd had a mind aftuh chores fuh

* the paths an' the South Wood 'fore sunrise 60 * 'fore the birds flown down intuh its seams 32 i. Interstate-295 is an auxiliary route in Maine spanning 53 miles East to West, from West Gardiner to Scarborough.

ii. Portland, a city in Southern Maine’s Cumberland County, lies an hour south of Dresden. It is the state’s social and commercial center.

iii. Franklin has been the Johansens’ farmhand for seven years.

33 i. Interstate-95 is the East Coast’s main highway, running from Miami, Florida to the Houlton-Woodstock Border Crossing between Houlton, Maine and Woodstock, New Brunswick.

ii. Bangor, a city in Central Maine and the seat of its Penobscot County, lies an hour and a half North-East of Dresden.

iii. Portland and Bangor host local farmers markets every Wednesday, where the Johansens set up stands weekly to sell their produce.

34 Katie and Jenna are the farm’s two apprentices who are offered training, room, and board for their labor, and replaced whenever they may choose to leave.

37 Priuh [sic]; prior.

52 Aesthetical [sic]; aesthete; the self-centered stage of man’s life, according to Kierkegaard in Either/Or.

53 Also defined in Kierkegaard’s Either/Or—Ethical; the stage of man’s life when he commits to societal integration and commitment itself.

56 Fewcha [sic]; future.

55 - 57 The idiolect habitual to our speaker and his pa has them out of place in Portland, Maine’s metropolitan capital.

59 The south woods border the farm’s southern field on the East and South.

60 Ruffed grouse roost in the canopy of tall, mature hardwoods, and fly to the ground at sunrise, where they can be found navigating interstitial timber seams into cover brush. dustin off on the dirt he cleared breakin fast on the cluff that sprung up pa a quick one deceptively layin paths like traps an' layin down the law fuh the house guessin he the lawmakuh cause he so quick an' crackin on Franklin specially ma thinkin he comin down on Frankie harduh than Sal an' Frankie gettin the worst of the whip prolaby cause Frankie passes on good looks an' makes a grump out of pa who says Frankie gonna learn despair 'fore he gets a "ethic" sure Frankie always hounded with the worst whip made tuh scrub the rotten syrup out the vat in the saphouse then pa accidennally locked the main house doors Frankie said he turtled up in the sack tuh sleep but mosquitoes eatin through that easy he enned up on the outhouse floor with a constellated face eitha or, dawn crept up early bowels had me rushin like a wild dabblin in a feedlot feel like the whole wood's awake bet the grouse flown down early like they had market too pa prolaby picked the best day tuh shoot on intuition some mornin got its men and women makin moves some mornin just a minute aftuh night like the whole woods nevuh slept kirkegard pokin out so i gas the lantern readin him you can't mess around with the fat he got more of it than ma's prize sow A cluff is a group of clover, an early succession legume that is one of the first plants to grow on cleared land. It is common around road beds, planted as a cover crop in fields, and a staple of the ruffed grouse early morning diet.

These paths double as a network connecting parts of the south woods and an evocation of clover luring ruffed grouse.

Sack; sleeping bag.

An insulated structure.

Dabblin [sic]; a dabbling is a type of shallow water duck that feeds primarily on the surface of the water.

A gas lantern hangs from a hook next to the door inside the outhouse.

Most of Either/Or is illegible to our speaker, so he considers it fat; it’s something that can be excised. like gunnin deer ‘stead of bird
  * one clean shot fills the pot
  * you best aim fuh parts particularly portant thakin tuh pa fuh the help heuh * he musta read the whole thing then marked the x’s * underlined kirkegard’s kill shots first one i seen been marked heavy folded page an’ penned down “In addition to my other numerous acquaintances,

I have one more intimate confidant My depression is the most faithful mistress I have known—no wonder, then, that I return the love.”

pa been given a rough up guessin life stormed on him, weathered him like rock i respectin him though sometime respect terrifyin holy hell someone sleepin on the market * Frankie’s crew cab gone but GMC sleepin in the garage

  * the lord’d have us on a draught fuh this the postman goes by snow rain heat an’ gloom but they just passin notes while the farmuh grows by draught and permafrost and quakes out west hell ma practicably a seismometuh shed be the first woman tuh tell a quake she’d call in WGME and put ‘em onto it no sleepin on that, got an umbilical tuh the world an’ at all time at least some island out there awake so motha earth nevuh sleepin on ‘er baby they callin ‘er that way in the fields white an’ pink carnation gown an’ pickin weed masterly like a ma be fixin diapuh an sewin up the soil As you only need one deer's worth of venison to feed a family, you need read only one well-chosen sentence of Either/Or to satiate your philosophical appetite.

Pa has studied Either/Or and marked remarkable passages.

Our speaker leaves the outhouse for his bed.

He straddles the ware-and-produce house's east wall, just west of the garage and mechanics cellar.

Frankie's truck is normally parked parallel to the east wall of this stock house. The GMC, also a crew cab, is one of the Johansen's two trucks large enough to transport stock for the farmer's market.

Our speaker steps in a puddle of brake fluid where Frankie's truck would be parked.

Seismometer [sic]; seismograph. A device that measures the details of an earthquake.

WGME-TV is the CBS-affiliated television station serving southern Maine. dawn cryin to 'er like a child when i was one she'd pick crop ovuh me pa was the one had me on the bottle same one tuh be pickin up aftuh the place twixt spottin leaks in tractor tires an' thens in faucets trackin its spray tuh mold unduh wallpapuh keepin house as best he keepin mind i guessin someone gotta keep this spotless fuh clean thinkin while ma an' Franklin spreadin Reemay an' Lord if he don't take that Ruger tuh my head fuh what i just had done on his floor black oil boot tracks showin my rush tuh the kitchen were pa in there they be leadin right tuh caution tape outlinin a crime scene investigation of a boy died by disobedience he be fumin worse than this glycol-etha fresh out the crew cab's hydraulics guessin Frankie fixed his up fer a leak i stept in but no soul still livin in this house right now from pa's tuh Franklin's the beds been 'bandoned left tousled like dawn crept up an' they musta been rushin tuh follow the day considerin the lamp knockt off the bedside an' the stem broken in two like it been upside a skull eitha or, house been rousted ma not sleepin Franklin not sleepin pa not there

prolaby up 'fore he slept since he takin over * Frankie's toil rollin reemay, rotatin coops * an' double wirin the sty tuh keep farrow from squeezin through Our speaker was tended to by his father more than by his mother.

Reemay is a brand-name row cover—a translucent, flexible fabric spread over crop to protect them from cold, ill weather, and insect infestation.

In a hydraulic brake system, glycol-ether brake fluids are stored inside a master cylinder. When the brake pedal is pressed, a pushrod drives the pistons in the master cylinder, which forces brake fluid out of the reservoir, into a pressure chamber, towards caliper pistons that apply force to the brake pads which push against the rotor and cause the vehicle to brake.

Franklin was supposed to remove Reemay from a row of sweet peas. Rolling it up into a ball to stow for later is usually at least a two-person job.

The Johansens’ pig pen is made of fence and post, not newer hog panel which has a wire mesh with a smaller check size towards its bottom preventing any piglet’s escape. Double wiring a fence would yield the same effect.

Farrow; a litter of piglets. maybe the ansuhs turnin up in South Field that plot turnin bounties out of till maybe Katie an’ Jenna turned bedsick tuh ready fuh market maybe today been saved by two South Cabin soljuhs sickuh than swine with bush foot an’ as stubborn tuh use em but a sight through they window clearin things up them sheets stiffuh than sleep an’ the girls lookin rigid like they been put down had me gunnin down South Field fuh the sty in the wood normly you hearin breathin or snufflin and mud play once you hit the edge of the wood but there w’aint all the hog clear left prolaby lookin fuh freedom and black trumpets i clear pissed but i w’aint about tuh call no one cause the coop been wheelt to a new bed which meanin pa took em quickuh than five meanin he prolaby balled up the reemay quickuh than four an’ dragged it up North Plot fuh the beets an’ cabbage he deep woods somewhere on a real spree pheasants prolaby beggin he let em go but that Ruger out there clippin wings oh Lord may not have us on draught but he let the fuckin pigs loose ennerin me inna one man hog callin contest racin inna wood squealin down path halt on hearin a mess in the brush crept up on the hot spot low down tuh wrangle Bush foot, the predominate player in mortality rates, is infection of the hoof.

The Johansens’ pig pen is located east of South Field immediately past the South Wood treeline.

Portable chicken coops divide plots of old crop and beds of new soil that need fertilization.

North Plot: A northern plot of South Field for crops to be planted in late Summer. In New England, Beets and Cabbage are planted in August.

Alongside grouse, pheasants are a popular game bird for upland hunting.

Hog calling contests judge candidates’ hog calls based on their artistry and efficacy in luring pigs to approach the caller.

Our speaker believes the disturbance to be caused by an escaped pig. but them brush was silent of swine one step more an’ out flew a plume of pheasant all urgent rockets launchin up tuh nowhere fast well if the grouse parked so close tuh camp then where in the how is pa one round off that Ruger clears the canopy anotha mess in a bush next door one step triggerin a second plume an’ Lord’s thunduh in two rounds heart near popt, world flared in a dilatin second a pheasant life left its body which slaps the ground the canopy shiverin and dustin away two rounds off that Ruger cracks the sky cloud soakin up true red dawn like Lord’s cotton swabs on blood an’ Odin in the middle of the way standin large like one of then’s deities a lincoln of a man his norse head moose-long “Mornin. Pick ‘er up an’ relieve me.” shruggin his shouldeh bouncin a wreckt arm gesticulatin a flannel sling at that Ruger unduh the other this man miracle makin outa hip shot “Day dawnt on ya early, Søren.

As fer you, fer us all. Night dint last long.”

tradin the grouse fer his girl takin it sweetly the grouse flipt an’ wings spread like Christ “Guessin. You takin trips down South Ridge er sumpin?”

Prolaby dint see its slope we a throw from tree line.” Ruger weighted like it empty, laid it tuh rest on a log fer all the work it did “Mornin had its thorns but they w’aint the briars.
Lord’s thunder in two rounds; the sound of two shots let out Pa’s double barrel Ruger. He has shot at the pheasants.

Pa was named after the Norse god, Odin, fabled to be the god of royalty, battle, frenzy, healing, death, the gallows, knowledge, sorcery, poetry, and the hunt.

The Nordic skull is characteristically elongated.

Odin’s left arm is in a sling, its hand swollen with shattered bones, meaning he shot the pheasant one-handed from his hip.

Odin suspends the bird upside down, ready to clean it.

Throw; a stone’s throw.
The day meant somethin else for me.”

*pa lay’n bloodied soles on Christ’s wings his good hand poppin with blood chokin up on a leg has me complicit, chokin the otha

“You clear right pa. Lord oughta be cursed.”

pa’ starin down at the bird, maybe past it lookin underground at the workins of things *wincin at pain er whatevuh it was, he saw big an’ he was gone til his chin go up meanin we heave the legs pop out they sockets an’ in a slough of filament *featha an’ carcass unsheathin the pink gloss of breast “Day’s still long to reap, Søren. Bunk hand’s just that.”

“Where the whole of them hog pa I near pissed I seen em gone.”

offerin the breast towards pa so he snap the neck an’ decouple the spine from back tuh tail

*a black blur of his Helle out the pocket cut sudden as its start by a flashin of blade

“Don’t get tossed ‘bout that. Gave me a bit of they trouble—“

*Helle shine slipt into roughage severin wing from ligament like he a butcha workin on bone fastuh than i can tell “Yuh mother sow had me down—but she in a new pen now.

This breast is good for keepin. Hand’s a-howlerin.

To the icehouse, Søren.”

his frame lean an’ cold bone like he livin Win’er in August *a furnace burnin last embuh of any fat lookin like Lord shaped him from these exact wood carved his muscles rugged with South Ridge granite lay’n tracks fer ambuh blood outta roots of a upenned maple Odin pins the bird's wings with his boots to ground it for quick removal of its carcass.

After carcass removal, the bare breast is left attached to the neck, head, spine, and wings.

Bunk; slang used in Maine in reference to something broken, useless, or otherwise poor.

Only the wings are left.

A popular Norwegian brand of hunting and utility knives. his leatha field coat fringe red an' white with tailuh'd redbellies and eastern milk tail from the brush he huntin grouse fuh food an’ snakes fuh sport he best at scentin up fear er guilt an’ both are fillin up in me so i best tuh confess “Pa, no harm, but this mornin was a flurry.

Had me missteppin through a pool of glycol-etha an’ takin it with me in house.
On my life I’ll get cleanin’ it up.”

swearin it er not guessin it a mattuh of my life eitha or but i’ll clear piss if pa dint shake it off no this er that, i got none of the whip

“Well, then ya probably noticed the GMC yer ma s’posed to ride.
Brake pads seized against the disc, see.

Overheated til it had the friction surface peelin.
Got to scroungin an’ whipped ‘er up with a booster but the reservoir cracked from this week’s heat spell, renderin ‘er useless. That had my time borrowed.” “Huh, guessin i was thinkin it from Frankie’s cab considerin’ I dint near touch the garage.”

Pa palms me the raw bird shoulders the Ruger, packin up an’ beckonin to follow

“You a straight marvel, Søren.
Heedin on duty’s call, tendin’ on life’s details.

No matter them how small, no matter how short yer rest.
Ya got yer mind hooked up where most lost theirs.
As yer a early riser, yer a early bloomer too.”
Nine species of snake live in Maine, including the brightest: Northern Redbelly and Eastern Milk, from whose skin pattern Odin's coat fringe derives its red and white.

Normally grouse are hunted for sport more than food, considering it's uncommon to collect more than a dozen in a season.

Brake boosters can be installed on a vehicle to modify a disc brake system into something as effective as a hydraulic brake system.

The same heat spell that has Katie and Jenna catching "warm stroke." walkin with pa like walkin with a wizard always eitha makin everythin from nothin or solacin in silence

“A man’ll live to forget, struggle or ease, there’s beauty.
You best rise an’ face the hardest mornin.

An’ if ya left yer bed early enough yer rewarded with the sunrise remindin ya everythin in order.”

* the wood all dead silence sumpthin bout it finally givin the cue tuh rest but middle of the rest sumpthin bout it ringin * like ears aftuh switchin off a genny “Even when ya feel somethin like a fetus an’ the walls’re closin in, there is beauty.

An’ in our fortune it’s nothin but in these woods a throw out the front door.
My connivins had me lay its paths schemin on a lure for game,” speakin of, he packin that Ruger shell fresh ‘case we blessed with dinner on top the lunch on hand or ‘case a snake tuh be dealt with an’ pa bouta collect a new trophy

“but they a regular attraction for more than easy shot.
These paths are for a man to walk with himself.
These woods got muses from emergence to root.

Spirit's heard easiest in silence.
Its frequency is anxious,
* concentrated, cleans the body like ginseng, 285  Genny; slang for a generator.

300  Cleansing properties are attributed to ginseng by some.
which may start ya reelin like a repellant.
Ya may press yer mind to think over it but, after 'nough walking, ya find comfort in its dependability ya feel the sudden invigoration of a fed flame like a damper come unstuck and opened.”

hopin that's warmth enough tuh face the icehouse cause August w'aint this cold 'fore now half expectin’ pond steam tuh roll uphill

“I've come to reckon my name, Odin, a deceptive amulet from the god chief of then kin yers and mine, derivative of ‘wodaz’ meanin prophet.

On one hand it’s my sightly gift, speakin literal too.
On the other it could curse me a hermit over the hill ’cause other words it birthed would have me known as * mad, frantic, furious, by thens ancesters * an’ possessed by all others. As it were prescribed to me, life been a meditation on madness.”

pa bettuh fuhgot to prop the garage door while unduh the GMC cause he talkin like his head filled like the glycol-etha snaked its way up his nasal he always the cleauh calm aftuh wicked weatha even 'fore its passed, like not a drop get him guessin the storm inside the man so he at home in the real thing “Now, don't hear me out as a concluder cause if ya livin ya got figurin to do but this figurin i done and resolve to act upon as my final figurin.

Seers were diagnosed bunkly by a bunch of citizen doctors:
The airflow through a wood stove feeding the fire is regulated by a lever called a damper.

“Wodaz” is a Proto-Germanic adjective, the root of the theonym, ‘wodanaz,’ which derived the Old English “Wōden,” a cognate of the Norse theonym, “Óðinn,” which has been popularly anglicized as “Odin.”

“Wodaz” was substantivized into adjectives in Old Norse, Old English, Middle Dutch, and Old High German...

...From which such definitions as these, listed, can be derived.
mad for seein what others maynt.
Well, don’t the whole of Lord’s litter got this issue—born with separate eyes for damn sake.”

fragmentated by its gnarl bough and wisp glimpse of stone dome lurkin in the wood like a chapel tomb outta seventeenth century ice fog in sight now, driftin unduh pine,

like a chapel tomb outta seventeenth century

* “Mine’re burdened by its beholdins * of the pageless book
* followin the final period.” the icehouse got an arctic bubble round it stiffens trees tuh crackt statues a radius of suspended life still ‘cept floatin dust slaps me out my thought beggin eyes open, bewitchin senses, “I’m not maddened by the contents of my sight.

It’s the sentence before that period that’s most maddenin since afterwards there’s nothin to behold.”

* wooden doors to the icehouse built squat outta white pine * cause it take on watuh like wheat so it insulary heat nor cold nor nothin makin it out those doors

“An’ nothin to behold, to me, has come to signal no end, only the mark of a revolution.”

them hefty too, got us pushin like budgin Sal ‘fore she ready gotta be driven by need tuh mustuh up crackin ‘em the slightest Odin claims his eyes are trained on the end times, as were his namesake’s according to Norse mythology.

White pine has one of the higher thermal capacities out of New England timber.
“It’s a man’s passin but he a perennial flower, his life coaxed from his death, a regrowth governed by cycles whose ends are only ever supersessions by a beginnin.”

doors let an’ w’aint fuh the shock of cold i practicably tumble through tensin joints an’ seizin muscle had me stick-stiff met by arctic gust an’ shocked dumb from movin “A seed of a universe sprouts an’ expands to replace the old.”

life stopt an’ held in this chamber dilatin seconds stretcht tuh bear no end thick wall lined with hay an’ sawdust at least a ton large slab cut from the pond in the chambuh dugout, that blue whale hissin up thicket of mist lickin slow risin an’ crawlin’ toward the heat grippin at our leg tryna make it out “We got time in our microcosm an’ Lord has me a believer in findin hints for describin the next ‘fore we sleep on this one, an’ he layn ‘em out, they called allegories.

If ya look, he laid ‘em plain. The perennial man, fer instance, he have us onto that concept through the cycle of four seasons.

Outside this microcosm, a man live a life like a year come an’ go.
First, he a toddlin Frankie, the aesthete extractin pleasure fer his sake. No mind about the Lord’s good er rest of the litter.

Well, Franklin has himself a mess, never tells life what to do. All’s conducted by caprice an’ wreckless romancin, rarely seein past a splendorous image into its workins. Man’s a kid an’ he more about the idea of bein a farmer than he ever shown he about actually bein one.”
The anatomy of this ice house is as such: the white pine double doors lead onto a 12’ by 5’ rectangular platform, its length running parallel to a half-cylindrical chamber with a recessed floor that is 6’ lower than the platform’s, whose radius is 10’. Along the center of the cylindrical wall, nestled into the layers of insulation, are two bay doors large enough to allow transport of feet-long ice blocks. This is the ice pit. A large franken-slab of ice harvested from South Pond fills it nearly up to the platform’s height. On the right end of the platform is a box filled with crushed ice. On the left end of the platform is a wooden hatch. This hatch opens to a stairwell which lowers 6’ over its length of 4.5’. At its bottom, immediately to the right, is the door to the freezer—a cellar stocked with shelving and meat hooks to store the perishables inside of it.

Blue whale; the ice slab. cuttin fuh icebox through frosted air like it don’t strip our skin

“One day a man in then Franklin stage may notice empires around him not all Lord’s paintins; they built by menly hands, not Gods’.

An’ he just a man all the same, surely? He wonderin the difference between those men who erected monuments an’ himself.

After a fret he discern his subjection’s to whimsy an’ drawn to immediate gratification, he spent his years in a private ether, ennertainin ephemeral pursuits while the ground b’low him stock’d with men plantin seeds an’ reapin what they sown.”

layn two hand on ‘er lid practically dead on contact like straight stingin nettle

“Down there lookin good an’ green an’ nothin disablin him so he ventures in plantin one himself. But, days an’ showers an’ his seed still lower than dirt ‘cause he collaboratin with fallow field an’ no crop grows in fallow field, so he takes to tillin, passions in tow.

But that’s a trial of sundry toils, makin for a story altogether foreign and depressin.”

pa chins up an’ we liftin oh may Lord e’scuse me chest gaspt like lung suckt up damned freon new air somehow more damn frozen shocked my whole system

“He gets ugly, cursin the Lord an’ other men an’ he learns despair, man’s second season.

It has its turn with him like the others but the bounty of his first crop may do some convincin.

His back bent,
His hand broke,
His body stroked by heat an’ bit by frost,” pa himself lookin a sorta unearthly a sallow thing with sunken eyes shattuhd bone minglin in its blackt an’ swollen club “but his till produced the inklin of an empire, the food to feed its people, an the man to rule ‘em.”

whole room on shallow breath harsh an’ buzzin with electrics pa stannin there with ice on his club “Given he fersake urge fer choice—choice bein the agency of man’s third season—to work his life like the farmer work his land, an’ study on the operations of ration, like he would a novel bible or kamasutra or whatever an aesthete vouches by in the latrine, an’ devotes his hand on his heart as a student of its ethic, then he gracin himself with a steady hand on his life.

Swollen club; Odin’s hand.
Way I see it, woke to third season’s dawn when I traded myself for this farm, this family, an’ this soil.”

air so thin can’t hardly make a word only a mind fuh puttin the grouse to rest in the icebox an’ gettin cleuh out the icehouse doin the job tossin the bird in pa pick ‘er up an’ offer ‘er back “She goes down hatch.”

that hatch in the cornuh lookin like no one’s best move just a way down storage an’ anotha ten degrees

“If my Sal an’ me were pavin path wide ‘nough—on account of accomodatin a family I presumably bringin with me to the frontier—then Franklin an’ yer ma were a stuck lot, theyself in the ditch on the side of it.

Sure they had they fun, but, if even for the love of they life, ever quit stuntin to grow.

All souls adrift oughta be guided home.

Subject to they whimsies, Lord never graced ‘em with Summa, Fall, or Win’er.”

pa’s speech lost on me whole of the mind bent on stokin coals hatch follows pa’s chin stairwell er a vortex chambuh light seeps intuh its pitch room hit absolute zero Odin and Søren open the hatch together and begin down the staircase.

“It take those few men, willed theyself into Win’er’s final quarter, devotin theyself to piety, for whom leaves are fallen an’ sky bares itself through the canopy to see what the aesthete, blinded by theyself an’ the ethical, tethered to the ground, cannot. Those few men layn they eyes an’ lent they ears to the end of all things.”

time drainin downstairs like it oozin unduh freezuh door where it layn at rest faces dissolvin intuh shroud jus black statue pa on the handle offerin me the way “They’s to forward the news to the rest of men. I am one of these men. My name an’ its sake, they no coincidence. They a touch of divinity.”

pushin pushin damn compellin this thing one bad shoulder to it an’ busted ‘er through an’ cleuh flung myself ontuh concrete body seekin mercy from this wretched floor too goddamn cold, proppin up my hand feelin like it gone intuh straight shit “Eugh—Pa, hit the light.”

scramblin off floor else it gonna have me stuck to it springin up has my foot lost on the left, swingin out—SKREEEEEE—“HOLY HELL! Damn hog down here! Just pegged one!”
A pig squeals.
all a sudden hearin they snufflin an’ chewin like theys feastin on slop, pa got the lights startin on they flickerin

Oh shit the whole of them hog in ‘ere, uh?
All in a circle gorgin on sumpthin fresh bloodied scrap of white guessin these hog hungry got it stript tuh bone

I screechin at em tuh scattuh out my way of the shelf “Go’n git!”

skedaddlin like guilty goblins a swarm of screechin ants back to they holes couple still pickin at this mess a long mess, clean skinned too,

aside on the ground ript scrap of sumpthin fabric thin, white an’ pink carnations

“Oh my fuckin
Lord, what the fuck
Lord, what the fuck—”

bone blue eye black hair

* “Soren, I’ve delivered the news to the others.
To Katie, Jenna, Franklin, and his lover.
Now you, my son, are all that’s left, ‘fraid.”

Red Ruger
Dead eye down sight
No light
Odin's Ruger Red is pointing at Søren, Odin's eye aligning him with the iron sight.
“As dawn crept up early on us this day, so has dusk, an’ so shall night.”