In the first half of 2022, I conceived and completed “My Life” electronic music album. As the name suggests, I put all my understanding of life into this 30-minute, 10-piece album. It has both difficult moments in my life and freestyle that I “forced” my friends to record. The song I wrote called “I Love You” was dedicated to my junior high school classmate who just got married this summer. I wrote down his love story as lyrics, completed with drums and electric piano tracks. I composed and arranged music with Logic Pro, recorded and mixed it myself, and turned it into a finished work. Its cover was photographed by Zhang Yimiao, my best friend.

In the second half of 2022, I named my graduation performance “Evolving”. Because I realized that my understanding and preferences for music have been changing as I explore it. I am genuinely proud of how far I have gone. But at the same time, my music will not stop evolving just because I graduate. I believe that my music and I as a person will keep evolving into new species. The graduation performance tracks include my moderation album “Future Progressive”, which I completed in the winter of 2021, “My Life” and singles that I collaborated with other Bard musicians that were not included on the album. For the final show, I also experimented with visualizing my music through a laser show. Its success gave me confidence to continue exploring the possibilities of live music. The senior concert poster was photographed by Yibai Shen.
