Scarlet Court Men Defeat The Pratt Institute Team 45-30

Saints Won Rough Contest Saturday. Keen and Lemley Star.

In a rough game that soon became like football, the Pratt Institute team bowed to St. Stephen's, Saturday night. If nothing else, the game supplied lots of humor and fun to the spectators.

Pratt started things off with a foul shot and a long shot from the side. Practically all of Pratt's baskets were made on long shots.

Keen started things off for the Saints with a foul shot, and Lemley followed with a pretty shot on a pass from Keen. Ricciardi sank a foul and Pratt evened the score. Lemley then cut loose with three baskets in quick succession and Pratt never got in the running again. Keen and Lemley were in great form, Keen scoring seven points and Lemley eleven in the first half. The score at the end of the initial period was 23-14 with Pratt on the short end.

Ricciardi went out on personal soon after the second period began and Keen took his place, Symons going in at center. The last half was pretty much of a walkaway. Lemley and Keen starred for the Saints. Burbank played a great game at guard.

Lemley was high scorer with 21 points to his credit.

Dr. Bell on the College Problem

In a sermon at Church of the Heavenly Rest in New York City delivered recently, Warden Bell asserted that college methods of cramming facts down students' throats are blamable for "the current decay in urbanity."

Dr. Bell said that the two outstanding problems of colleges today are: to create a college with the breadth of a university and at the same time present the possi-

Libaire Elected To Position In O. X. A.

Chapter To Pledge New Members After Charter Has Been Received — Other Eastern Chapters Will Be Sought.

At a recent meeting of Omega Chi Alpha, Theta, the honorary journalistic fraternity recently established in St. Stephen's by this organization in annual convention, George A. Libaire, M. A., Instructor in English, was elected to membership. O. X. A. has a national ruling that each chapter must have on its roll one member of the faculty in the institution in which the organization has been established. Mr. Libaire's previous experience in campus journalism, in addition to the fact that he is a member in the faculty of English here, pointed to his election. He has been interviewed, and has accepted the place offered him.

Theta chapter hopes to receive its charter within a month. Due to the fact that it is the only chapter of this organization east of the Mississippi prevents the national officers from coming on from California headquarters to install it. The first duty of Theta is to pledge a number of new members; it will then seek, with the sanction of the national board of officers, to place chapters in colleges in this part of the state.

"Outward Bound" Mummies' Latest

The Department of Public Speaking has chosen the play to be presented in the Spring, directly after the close of the basketball season. The play is "Outward Bound", a modern psychological drama in three acts by Sinton Vane. This play has had an extended New York run, having been produced by the Theatre Guild of that city. Several of the students saw it produced at Swathmore College last year and are heartily endorsing its production at St. Stephens. The play is extremely difficult to produce and requires acting of the most efficient type. Dr. Bell has carefully chosen the cast as follows:

Scrubby	Mr. Paul Ann
Ann	Mr. Willis Henry
Henry	Mr. Wilcock
Mr. Prior	Mr. Face
Mrs. Cliven-Banks

Rev. Wm. Duke	Mr. Hague

The first problem is vital if we are to produce men of taste, rather than intellectualized hooligans. The second is even more vital if we are to produce anything more than fact-accumulating specialists with no sense of purpose.

Book "Interred" With All Due Solemnity—Class Scrap Follows Norwich Game.

Les membres de la classe de 1932 veulent annoncer a tous les etudiants du college de Saint Stephen la mort paisible et l'enterrement secret de l'Algebre de cette classe, ce mois de Fevrier 4, 1929.

Which being translated into colloquial English means that the members of the Sophomore Class are some day going to wake up and find themselves asleep. The alert young Freshman certainly caught them napping. On the evening of February 4th the aforementioned Sophomores began to awake from their "deep dream of peace," but it was all too late. "The deed had been did." The Sophomores were led to believe that the "funeral rites" had not yet been performed. Consequently, they were "struck all of a heap," as it were, when the announcements came out. Yes, they were extremely dubious, but the Student Council has ruled that the burial was legal. So, friend Algebra, "Pax vobiscum." "Your mortal obligations have been fulfilled."

And just this as a tip. (This is real inside dope) The Sophomore that discovers the Algebra (if such a thing can be done by a Sophomore) may consider himself lucky. This Freshman Class is not a bit backward. With said Algebra there lies "interred" some really good wine, and plenty of it. Although the wine would probably produce scarcely any effect on a Freshman, if a Sophomore were to imbibe the luscious liquid, in all probability he would become frightfully intoxicated. So, take heed, Sophomores, these Freshmen aren't so dumb. They "ran off" a good Frolic, and to almost everyone the Algebra

Dr. C. A. Garabedian Elected To Faculty

To Assume New Duties Next Semester

St. Stephen's College and Columbia University, jointly announce the election to the faculty of St. Stephen's College, as Associate Professor of Mathematics and Instructor in Physics, for 1929-30, of Carl Arshag Garabedian, Ph. D. Dr. Garabedian will assist Dr. Phelan in these departments.

Dr. Garabedian, who is a Phi Beta Kappa man, received his public school training at Dorchester, Mass., and is a graduate of Tufts College receiving his B. S. degree in Chemical engineering in 1915. He is also a musician of some note, having spent three years in the study of the theory of music. While teaching he has been at various times the organist of Tufts College, organist at the University of New Hampshire, the organist at Northwestern University, Evanston. He was known at Tufts as a distinguished amateur actor. He is the composer of the famous Eudun song used at Tufts.

Dr. Garabedian was instructor in Mathematics at the University of New Hampshire from 1916 to 1918. During the war he was computer at Fortress Monroe. He then entered Harvard University, where he took his Master's degree, and

St. Stephens Defeats Norwich U. 56-23

In a game that was interesting in so far as a victory was added to the Scarlet, the St. Stephen's team defeated Norwich 56-23 on February 4th.

Both first and second teams were used in this game. The first team went in at the beginning of the game and scored twenty-two points eleven of which were made by Ricciardi. Fuscas and Lemley played nice ball feeding to Ricciardi time and time again. The first team was taken out and the seconds held the Vermonters down very successfully. Burbank surprised everybody, including himself, by sinking a basket from the middle of the floor.

Soon after the second half started Ricciardi went out via the foul route. Ruscas and Lemley started to run wild, and when the smoke had cleared and the first team left the floor, they had gathered in five baskets apiece.

The second team finished the game. Ken Glenn, a transfer, made his first appearance in the Scarlet and White uniform, playing guard in Burbank's place. He showed up well, sinking a basket and playing a good defensive game.

Peppy Music; Clever Decorations Made Dance Success

The Frolic of the Class of 1932 took the College by storm. In fact, it was one of the best ever given by a group of undergraduates here.

Through much hard work on the part of the Committee and members of the class, the gymnasium was virtually transformed into a Japanese garden. Charming lighting effects were produced by the strings of electrically lighted Japanese lanterns against a blue sky. On each side of the orchestra were screens of typical Japanese design behind which were placed colored flood lights. During the waltzes a colored spot-light was played on the gliding couples. On each wall of the gym were panels portraying picturesque Japanese landscapes. Evergreen trees against the walls completed the decorations.

The dance began at 9:30 and ended at 3:30 with an intermission from 12 to 1. As at the Junior Prom there were sixteen card dances; eight in each half. During the intermission supper was served in Commons. Mrs. Kuyk provided a delicious meal. While the guests were eating, Mr. Stanton, of the orchestra, entertained with his accordion.

Music for the dance was furnished by the Blue and White Racketeers of Yale University. The Committee was exceedingly fortunate in procuring the services of these men who provided eight pieces and a leader plus an evening of excellent music. How they did keep everybody pepped up! Boy they were good!

Balfour and Co., of Attleboro, Mass., made the dance program. On the gold cover was a Japanese Lady holding a fan. When the fan was opened, the seal of the College, done in gold on a blue background, was revealed. The Class colors were very effective in this design.

As usual Mr. Corti made the punch; this station was the center of attraction the whole evening. Mr. Corti certainly can make punch.

Because of the weather, the hockey game which had been scheduled for Saturday, had to be called off. There were no fraternity functions because both the Eulexian and the Kap houses are under construction yet.

The members of the Committee wish to express their appreciation of the valuable assistance given them by Elton Davies, Lev Smith, Ronald Ortmyer, Harvey Fite, and Jack Heuss.

Those on the Committee were Parmelee Lyman, John Mulligan.

SHANK'S MARE

Many charges have been made against the youth of today and among them the indictment of laziness. True it is that the average American youth indulges in far less walking than his father or grandfather. This is partially due to the increase and improvement in transportation facilities, necessitating far less personal effort in making a commercial call or a social visit. On the other hand, this charge, which is literally laid at the feet of the present generation, is not utterly groundless but has some basis in fact.

Thus far we have been concerned with a mere statement of the case. Now let us consider what might be done to solve this modern problem. Since the fundamental reason for laziness is lack of interest, the easiest remedy would be to supply interest. But how can that interest be supplied. The answer is easily found in the "hiking clubs" which have been formed in Germany since the close of the war. These clubs were formed primarily to rebuild the physical and moral health of the youth of Germany, who had become rather undisciplined and lazy. At first short, one-day trips were taken. However, after a time the youth of each city became satiated with trips in their neighborhood and desired longer excursions. At this point advantage was taken of the many old and partly ruined castles and other similar buildings which are found throughout the Rhineland. Financial aid came from all sides, both government and private funds being contributed, and now many new buildings are in the process of construction. Custodians have been appointed for these shelters, and strict regulations cover their use. Such is the enthusiasm which has been aroused that the movement is rapidly spreading over Germany, Austria, Bohemia, Esthonia, Latvia, Holland, Sweden and Switzerland.

Our own country has natural beauties which far surpass those of any European nation. The formation of similar clubs would, with the cooperation of the transportation companies, make it possible for the youth of America to "see America first." The educational and physical benefits to be derived from such a movement are infinite. Let us hope that the present generation will not only refute this challenge of their elders, but will also lead the way in this field of true sport, as it now leads in every endeavor which it has undertaken.

AND WHAT?

It is no small wonder that the minds of college students are turned topsy-turvy and their various codes smashed when they are confronted with the inconsistencies of life. College life, right now, if you please.

One arrives on the campus and at once things bewilder him. He is coddled and beaten, sought and avoided. All this is as clear as mud to him, a freshman. Later on the clarity becomes more natural, when he has imbibed of the fountain of college life quite freely. He understands that part of it.

The faculty has his interests at heart or someplace. The conservative ones warn him against the evils of certain things. The liberal-minded solons indifferently (apparently) advise him to know lie, to think and so forth. Usually it is the latter class which causes him to struggle into a spell of thinking, and then things are more muddled than ever, for a while, at least.

He is taught idealism and then stark realism.

He has recommended to him Thomas a Kempis and Menckel.

He yearns to be a cynic and he fain would be a man of Love.

Sometimes a college student finds himself before he leaves the campus. It is well that more than one doctrine is preached. It's a case of "What have you... Yes... Take your choice." However, one of the nauseating features of the ballyhoo is seeing a college man who attempts an extreme personification of either of the extremes. There are such.

After it's all over, maybe the one who has been through it has learned—even if it be but a mere grain of— isn't there such a word as truth? And we come to college to learn.

—M. P. C.

The Eulexian fraternity wishes to announce the pledging of Parmelee Lyman, '32 of New York City, on February 17.

Lyre Tree Meeting Changes Staff Box

At a meeting of the editorial staff of the Lyre Tree on the noon of February 12, some changes were effected in the membership of this department of the board.

Robert Gamble, '30, Managing Editor had presented a request for a leave of absence from duty until the month of May. This was granted, and Leslie Lang, '30, News Editor, was elected to undertake Gamble's work for him. Edgar Hammond, '31, was elected to carry on Lang's duty.

The Lyre Tree in an issue of a few weeks ago announced the election to the staff of Benjamin Barber, Fred Eckel, and Guy Pickering, all of the class of '32. Their names appear in the staff box of this issue for the first time.

The current issue of the paper is the first one since that of January 24. The board makes the excuse that the examination period, which covered more or less an interval of ten or twelve days, broke up the schedule of work considerably, and what with the reorganization of classes, etc., it has not been until the past week that the Lyre Tree editorial department began to function again.

LICENSE REQUIRED

Sophomores who would paddle the University of Oregon freshmen must first show a license issued by the paddling committee. Under the softening, civilizing influences of legal forms do the freshmen in this wise ease their base physical pains.

RESULTS OF CENSORSHIP

John S. Sumner of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, has decided that "The Well of Loneliness," a novel written by Miss Radclyffe Hall, and published in American by Covici-Friede, violates the section of the penal code relating to obscene and indecent literature. Recently, detectives raided several retail bookstores, including that of R. H. Macy and Company, seized 800 copies of the book and served summonses on the publishers. Mr. Sumner, a private citizen, and his vice society, a private organization, by some hocus-pocus seem to be in the position of guardians of public morals and commanders of the New York Police. But it is interesting to note while Mr. Sumner was making up his mind that the book was corrupting and improper, 20,000 copies were sold, and the publishers and booksellers are now in receipt of hundreds of orders sent since the announcement of the vice society's action was published in the newspapers. Thus does censorship make men and women defy the perils of obscenity! The most encouraging thing about the matter that a committee is now being formed to fight the ban against the book. Messrs. Covici and Friede declare that they will take the case through the courts "as far as it can be carried." It is time that Mr. Sumner and his associates were brought out into the open and given a run for their money; meanwhile Miss Hall owes them much for free publicity.

—The Nation.

Two is company, but three is a bloc that will try to get a law passed.

If we could see ourselves as others see us we wouldn't believe our eyes.

So drive that when your summonses come you may lie as convincingly as possible.

When one continually butts into other people's affairs he can't complain if he is finally made the goat.

A deadly viper bit a St. Louis man. Which is news only because the viper died, while the man is recovering.

Communications

To the Editor of the Lyre Tree: In reading the last edition of the Lyre Tree I came across the communication of some freshman (it was not hard to figure out that a freshman wrote it) who bewailed the lack of "college spirit" in St. Stephen's, and in so doing made good use of his chance to take a crack at "freshman discipline" in general.

I quite agree with his statement that the spirit is lacking, but I do not agree that it is due to any maltreatment of the freshmen. I will admit that the upper-classmen (in the past years) have set no sterling example for the incoming classes; however, this situation is gradually being remedied. From my last remark you are probably agreed that a Sophomore is writing this communication, and your speculation is quite true, for a Sophomore who is but one year removed from the cradle stage, would be the only one who would stoop to answer such a communication. I might add that we let out the same groans last year as you have this year. For the last 3 years freshman discipline has been on the decline, yet it seems that each in-coming class howls louder than the first. (I don't know why.)

From time immemorial the freshman has been an object of ridicule and discipline, and I personally believe that a college would be lacking if such a precedent were abolished. (Certain freshman readers are probably laughing at this, but I'll bet that many agree with me). It creates class unity, spirit, and adds a certain sentiment to college life. In some institutions they attack the problem in different ways; in some places the freshman is despised and ostracized from everything (I'm sure our dearly beloved class of 1932 would like such treatment), and there are numerous other methods I could enumerate. In regard to work, is our freshman author of the opinion that upper-classmen (and we'll include the Sophomores) should give up their beds to visiting teams, should sweep the rink, and do many other menial tasks while there is an able-bodied freshman class on campus? I might add that a freshman could demonstrate his college spirit by taking the place of some waiter who is representing his college on the field but our author does not seem to be of the same opinion.

No, my dear freshmen, the way to bring about college spirit would not be to abolish freshman discipline, but for the incoming classes to recognize the superiority of the men above them and to implicitly obey all their regulations, - and then quietly to demonstrate their own spirit and set an example for the rest of the campus to follow. Our class tried it, and although we may have failed miserably in your eyes, we have set the spark glowing. Let's see you bring it to a flame.

—D. E. F.

Trustees Vote Increase In Fees

The Board of Trustees at its meeting on February 5th, adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, that beginning September 1, 1929, the fee charged for board shall be $150.00 per person per semester, with the proviso that the Warden and Bursar in conference shall have the power, where they deem it necessary and advisable, to fix the fee for persons now in residence at the present fee of $125.00 per person per semester." This action was taken after conference by mail with all parents and guardians, the overwhelming majority of whom expressed the desire to have the fee so arranged. The remuneration given to waiters will be equal to the board charges, namely, $300.00 for the year.

HIGHER CRITICISM

The Freshmen succeeded in giving us a very good dance, and the rest of the college should express its thanks to them for it. The spirit was good, the orchestra was good, the decorations were good. And while there are those who grieve over the fact that the guests had to leave by six o'clock Saturday evening, thus preventing the usual Saturday-night fraternity dances; still it seems to me that we should be thankful that they went when they did, for the weather has been confoundingly sloppy lately, and it would have been a terrible nuisance carting all those females hither and yon for two whole days, through so much slush, cold rain, and melting snow. There won't be any snow in May, however, and if there is a six-o'clock-Saturday rule for the Spring Dance it will be a ruinous shame.

I guess that's about all there is to be said this time. To fill out the column, I insert a morsel of old French verse which I found recently. I quote it for the particular benefit of our dear little brethren "Les Jargonneurs," the only important thing about whom I can observe at present is that their constitution is still needlessly filling up a great deal of valuable space on the bulletin board.

"De la Sorbonne un Docteur amoureux
Disoit un jour a sa Dame rebelle,
Ainsi que font tous autres amoureux:

Je ne puis rien meriter de vous, belle.

Puis nous prescha que la vie eternelle

Nous meritons par oeuvres et par dictz.

Arguo sic. Si magister Lourdis
De sa Catin meritor ne peut rien:
Ergo ne peut meriter paradis,
Car, pour le moins, paradis la vaut bien."

The person making the most correct written translation of the above will kindly come around to McVickar 9 and collect cash prize of aluminum, electrically driven Vergil trott.

And still the column isn't filled out!

News Items

The resignation of the Reverend Joseph G. H. Barry, D. D., Lut. D. (Saint Stephen's College, Honoris Causa, 1926), as Rector of the Church of Saint Mary the Virgin, off Times Square, New York City, was recently announced. Father Barry will be known to the older men of the campus as a frequent lecturer and preacher at the college. For many years Hoffman Library has been continuously enriched by Doctor Barry's generous contributions to its shelves, especially in the field of modern literature and biography.

Mr. N. Stewart Smith, pianist, gave a Recital of Modern Music in Memorial Gymnasium, on Monday Evening, February 18th, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Smith is particularly well known for his playing of Debussy, six of whose compositions were included in the program.

Hobart Walker, '25, and "Luke" Andrews, '25, were visitors on campus on last Sunday, February 17.

Army Beats St. Stephens On The Court 41-29

In a one-sided, uninteresting game, the Army defeated St. Stephens in basketball to the tune of 41-29.

The score was quite a surprise as everybody had expected a close game with the Pointers.

Army jumped into the lead in the first few minutes of play, and were never threatened again. The first half was nothing but a walk-away; the Cadets scoring mostly on long shots. The first half was marred by rough playing and poor refereeing. At half time the score was 28-12 with the Saints on the short end.

In the second half the Scarlet team showed a little better form and out-played the cadets. By this time, however, it was too late and all they could do was to bring up their score a little.

Ricciardi starred for the Saints, sinking pretty shots. Glenn and Burbank played good games at the guard position, and Lemley showed some pretty flashes.

Prominent Professor Goes Mad

Dr. Blank is a bridge player and a mild man withal, but even a bridge player and a mild man can be pushed too far. Dr. Blank had invited a few of the boys up to his room for a bit of tea and a bit of bridge, and had visioned a pleasant winter's afternoon, but things weren't turning out so well. They'd been playing for several hours now, and Dr. Blank hadn't had one good bidding hand. It was enough to make any one peeved.

So, Dr. Blank suggested "time out" for a pot of tea and a biscuit or two; and just to break the lull he sent out to Dickie Doolittle's for a new pack of cards.

"It may be superstitious," he said to the boys, "but I think a new deck would change things. Let's cut for partners again."

As soon as he picked up his hand, Dr. Blank could tell something was going to happen.

"One spade," he said; it was his initial bid that afternoon.

Mr. Hitchcock, on Dr. Blank's left, looked at his hand and blinked. "Two spades," he said.

The merest trace of a frown scurried across Dr. Blank's face, but disappeared immediately.

"Three spades," he said in a firm voice.

"Four spades!" retorted Mr. Hitchcock.

"Five spades," yelled Dr. Blank, no longer any restraint in his tone.

"Six—" began Mr. Hitchcock, and ducked, for Dr. Blank was reaching for the ink bottle.

A moment of scurrying followed; and then all was still.

"Six spades," taunted Mr. Hitchcock from under the couch. A crash and a volley of shrieks answered him. Dr. Blank, the calm and politic Dr. Blank, had gone berserk. For five minutes tea-cups and books played a tattoo upon the walls. Dr. Blank had just placed his hand on the water-pitcher when the door burst open, and Dickie Doolittle, his bosom heaving, entered the room.

"Stop!" he said. Dr. Blank picked up a bridge lamp.

"Stop!" said Dickie. "I'm sorry Kent made that mistake. I've come to get that pinocle deck, he sold you a few moments ago!"

The bridge lamp descended, blotting out the rest of the scene.

"MESSENGER"

ABOUT READY TO GO TO PRESS

The winter number of the Messenger is now in the process of compilation, and will soon be ready for the press. So far the material which has been submitted for possible publication has been, for the most part, poetry, or rather we should say verse, and the quality is of a very fair nature.

For prose there has been contributed, among other things, an interesting critical essay on Dostoevsky, together with two short stories in which is contained an element of moderate charm.

The Reverend John Mills Gilbert has again been kind enough to contribute some of his excellent poetry which when printed will doubtless be the best thing in the magazine. Altogether, the impending issue promises to be fully as good as the one in November, if not a little better.

Upsala Loses To Saints

In a game that was not very interesting, except for a few moments in the last half, the Saints defeated Upsala last Friday night. The final score was 43-37.

The first half was devoid of thrills, the Saints starting things off and doing most of the scoring and passing all through the period. Now and again the New Jerseyites would get the ball and some times drop in a basket. The score at the end of the half was 25-9.

In the second half Upsala uncovered a little fight and started to pull up the score. They got within three points of the Saints and then Lemley, Keen and Fuscas uncoiled a few of their shots and the rally fell through.

Lemley was high scorer with 19 points and Fuscas was next with nine. Ricciardi was in the game for only a short while and his scoring powers were missed although no more baskets were really needed.

B. U. Students Spend $6,000,000 on Books

Although Boston University has a "standing library of over 150,000 volumes for the scholastic needs of its 13,000 students it has been estimated that a library of over 2,000,000 volumes could be amassed from the books bought and used by the students for their college courses. The student capital invested in books at B. U. is estimated at over $6,000,000.

There are eight college libraries at Boston University with an average collection of approximately 20,000 books apiece. The Cabot library with 42,150 volumes on its shelves has the largest collection.

Ten Pins

I hear the dear Editor shouting down the hall at me to get the heck busy and jot down some interesting notes on a few of the books which I have been cutting classes to read during this past week. When editors go wild they are wild creatures. Just you make a visit to any room in Albee Hall the day on which the Lyre Tree goes to press and see for yourself the unseemly conduct and language which is actually forced upon each of us poor reporters. There he goes... off on a tangent again. Pardon me a minute... there, he's quieted down now.

In by broussings during the last few weeks among the newer books from my publisher I came upon "The Battle of the Horizons," one of Sylvia Thompson's latest books. Wide and immediate response greeted "The Hounds of Spring", Miss Thompson's memorable first novel. Her latest story is of a wealthy American girl whose mind is a web of illusions, and of her marriage into an English family of moderate means. Conflicts arise—conflicts of human beings who misunderstand each other, conflicts of hard circumstances by which Athene's romantic soul is slowly subjugated to reality, gaining strength and understanding after stormy adventures have threatened to wreck her life. The action of the story is laid in contemporary England, and the various strands of English life—the artistic, political, literary, and other types that make up the human stream—Miss Thompson paints with the confidence born of knowledge and with an unusual understanding of character.

Octavus Roy Cohen's "The Light Shines Through" found its way to my desk the other day. This is a novel of romantic interest and suspense, quite different from his well known Negro dialect stories. Mr. Cohen creates a situation where a man, the woman who loves him, and her sister, are all held helpless by the woman's husband. The man is supposed to be dead, the wife is the heir to his fortune, and the young sister is guilty of a crime. Carefully, strand by strand, Mr. Cohen weaves the threads which entangle the three and then, in mounting excitement, untangles the web.

Last, but not least, is E. Philips Oppenheim's "Matorni's Vineyard." On the way to Monte Carlo a stranger, fearing assassination before he can cross the frontier, persuades Mervyn Amory to take charge of certain papers. That very night the stranger is killed. It is 1940, when the Italian dictator Matorni, swollen with pride of power, has cast envious eyes on adjoining French territory. His secret police attempt to obtain the papers. An exciting love affair with a beautiful Contessa is but another thrill in this brilliant example of Mr. Oppenheim's skill in the field of international politics.

Alumni Notes

It will be interesting to note that three of the younger alumni of St. Stephen's College are in the missionary field in Liberia. They are Herbert Donovan, a Eulexian; Robert Dickerson, a member of Kappa Gamma Chi; and Harvey Simmons, a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Mr. Victor Davey, an alumnus of St. Stephen's College, M. A. 1926, is now Associate Professor of Romance Languages at Lake Forest College, Lake Forest, Illinois.

Mr. James H. Darby, St. Stephen's 1927, has resigned his position as a master at the choir school of St. John the Divine Cathedral. Mr. Darby has held the position for two years. He will be married in the near future.

The Rev. Franz Schnweeweiss, St. Stephen's 1893, who has been rector of St. Teresa's Roman Catholic church, Washington, D. C., is now in charge of the work among colored people at Old Fort Stanton.

Dr. Archibald R. Mansfield, St. Stephen's 1892, the director of Seaman's Church Institute on Staten Island, has recently undergone a very serious operation for cataract, with a most successful outcome. The institute under his capable direction has just finished building a new $5,000,000.00 structure.

Rev. Henry Saunders, St. Stephen's 1921, has recently become a member of the clergy staff of St. Clements church, Philadelphia, Pa.

Herman R. Leonard, ex. '23, has been at home since the death of his father in Germany. He is living at Haledon, N. J.

Hugh N. Gifford, '24, has recently taken up his new duties with a lithographic firm in N. Y. C. He is making a study of the business in order to become junior partner in the establishment in the very near future.

Rev. Robert C. Hubbs, ex. '23, B. A. Swarthmore '23; is now a Curate at Christ Church, Newark, N. J.

Rev. Leopold Kroll, Jr., '23, of the Order of the Holy Cross, has recently been admitted to Junior Profession of that Order. He has recently been visiting his father, who is Dean of Trinity Cathedral in Port-au-Prince, Haiti. The youngest son, Frederick, who is with his father in Haiti is being prepared for St. Stephen's.

Rev. Harold Bessom, '24, is now rector of St. Matthew's Church at Hallowell, Maine.

Frosh Bury Algebra While Sophs Look On

(Continued from Page 1) burial yet remains a mystery. If the Sophomores really want to know where "It" is, they may get S. S. Van Dine to solve the mystery for them. Good work, Freshmen. Keep it up.

Joseph Janousek of Omaha has the distinction of being the first boy to qualify as an Air Scout of 'full-wing rank.'

Thousand of women are endangering their eyesight by using hair dyes, according to Dr. Cooper, a noted English specialist.

Ellsworth Rogers, 15 year old aviator of San Antonio, Tex., is planning to visit several large cities of the country by airplane next summer.

Frosh Philosophy

I believe in getting down to facts—cold, hard, relentlessly statistical facts. The kind of Facts you can grit your teeth over, or bite into as your inclination dictates. We are presupposing here the possession of teeth. However, teeth are not absolutely essential, for the facts may be rolled gently but firmly between the thumbs and fingers—the fingers moving up and the thumbs down. The results are perfectly astounding. Really, my dear, I mean it.

Having established a mode of procedure for handling Facts once they are in our possession, we proceed for no very logical reason to a serious consideration of methods of acquiring them.

Let us suppose that several Facts, by chance, accumulate, or should I say gather, in the library? Once they enter the long, quiet corridors, a great and ineffable peace descends upon them. No longer are they the wary, high-strung facts of the outer world. Sequestration has made them strangely susceptible to drafts, it has weakened their morale, and debilitated them woefully, but it has made them very, very happy. They're just little easy marks now.

One has only to visit the library, seize a Fact and apply the fool-proof method outlined in our first paragraph. It's so simple a sophomore can do it. The library, by the way, is that beautiful example of the uses to which assorted bricks, and the tin-smith's art may be put. It lies northeast of famous old Hopson Hall. We see by the papers that several canopener magnets are bidding for it, so get your Fact now and avoid rush, etc., incident to delay.

Dr. Bell on the College Problem

(Continued from Page 1) do something about this, the first adequate chance in modern America. Herefore religious colleges have been isolated, small colleges, doing good work but hampered by being somewhat out of those currents of world thought and action, which permeate the great universities. By the integration of St. Stephen's College into Columbia University a new sort of thing comes into being. A distinctly religious college—one with no denominational restrictions of personnel, but one insistent upon deep and personal as well as objective study of religion as a necessary part of racial experience—has been added to the university, on an exact footing of equality with Columbia College and Barnard College.

"The university believes all this wise, necessary and tremendously important. It asks the cooperation of religious people, and particularly of Episcopalians, to the extent of $2,500,000 in money necessary for making the college's salaries and resources of university grade. Will it gain the desired response? By the answer will be shown the interest such people really have in the intellectual possibilities of religion in the twentieth century."

Mrs. Harriet McGowan of Glasgow owes her life to her daughter, who gave her blood for an emergency transfusion when the mother appeared to be at the point of death.

Margaret Zeidman of Toronto, 10 months old, was made the youngest members of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Miss Elinor Smith, 17, broke the world's endurance solo flight record for women by remaining in the air 13 hours, 16 minutes and 45 seconds at Mitchel Field, New York.

Campus Clippings

A Manhattan man, thought dead, was restored by liquor. If it had been the other way around it would not have been news.

Answering a questionnaire, "Why did you come to the University of Wyoming?" seven students selected at random, gave the following answers:

Because my father wanted me to go to Colorado.
I didn't know what it was like.
To get married.
To keep from getting married.
To be near home.
To get away from home.
To keep from going to work.

The first intercollegiate aviation conference was held several weeks ago at Yale to promote intercollegiate air racing.

"Mother," cried little Mary, as she rushed into the farmhouse 400 women offered to adopt her.

Willie: Was your brother home from college over the week-end?
Sammy: I guess he musta been. My bank don't rattle any more!

Mrs. Anna Fox of Hiawatha, Kan., has a rolling pin which has been used and handed down in her family for 175 years, and is still in good condition.

Miss Mary Quirin of Schaller, Ia., has a corn-husking record of 1,335 bushels in 19 days, during which time she also cared for her team and cooked the family meals.

Now it is suggested that we observe a "Thing More Week." It would be a noble experiment for some.

Guatemala is reported to be on the brink of a revolution. Can't stand to see Nicaragua get all the publicity.
