The Student Council is to be congratulated for the fresh finger which it has directed to the opening of college this year. The Freshman Handbook which is distributed to each student contains a great number of things of interest to the student, and each student is able to find a place in it.

The book is a valuable aid to the student in his studies, and it is a great help to the Freshman in his work.

Fall Semester Begins With Thirty-seven New Men Enrolled

The closing of the registration period for the fall semester was on September 19, and there were thirty-seven new men enrolled in the college.

The closing of the registration period was followed by a large influx of students, and the college population is now approximately two thousand.

The new men are distributed as follows:

1. Freshmen
2. Sophomores
3. Juniors
4. Seniors

The college is well populated, and the new men are all eager to become a part of the college family.

The college is a great place for college students to become a part of. The faculty and students are all very friendly, and the college is a great place to learn and grow.

EDITORIAL

"HELLO"

The LYRE TREE wishes to take this opportunity to welcome the new student body this year to Columbia. "Hello" you to all, you are in good traditional with us. This is similar greeting to traditional in every other college in this country, probably as an "act of advice" we may intensify some very pleasant friendships and create new ones, and in this respect it is valuable. However, we do everything in the way of extra-curricula activities out of your first year! Your first year is particularly important. Develop your experience, in the chapel services of this college and every college in the country this is not something to be overlooked, but at the same time don't forget your school work. If you would spend a pleasant four years here, learn immediately to distinguish the petty things from the important. Three years of living here have not altered our original opinion that grasping and "grubbing" are petty. Within those weeks you should be able to througout our list considerably. This is not the time to waste or otherwise sacrifice enough time to think of some one else's; and don't forget this point. If you are in doubt, take our suggestion and try the second.

We have offered these to you with the hope that they might serve you in managerial capacities who handle a great number of things about you. Be sure you don't lose sight of it as the lesser and more important ones close up your horizon.

All over-due advertising will be discontinued.

The Messenger

Upon beginning a new semester, we must take an account of stock, in order not to waste, in more ways than one, in whatever we can do for the year. We must consider our budget and the materials needed to address the Advertising Department.

The Messenger has an obligation to fulfill all student requests. The Messenger is a Student-run organization and it is our duty to make sure that your needs are met. The Messenger is under the direction of the Faculty Financial Advisor and is responsible for the overall management of the newspaper.

The Messenger is published semi-monthly during the college year by students of Columbia University. The Messenger is published by students of Columbia University and is funded by advertising and subscriptions.

By way of review, let us look back over the past two years in the history of that magazine. Two years ago there were three issues of the magazine. The third issue appeared. The guidance spirit behind the publication of that magazine was excellent; the purpose of the magazine was admirable; the publication itself was desirable. Nevertheless, there was a deficit of something over one hundred dollars in the financial accounts of the year, which was due, to a very great extent, to those advertising which were not collected and un-collectable advertisements which were accepted by the management and published in good faith. However, there was that deficit which had to be cleared off.

Last year the Messenger was issued four times during the year. The past present "rotation" idea made it inevitable that last year's accounts should be "bigger and better" than proceeding attempts. From the literary point of view much is to be commended and much questioned. From the business point of view the magazine was successful. However, in order to attain to that success many more advertisements had to be procured. In other words, a very large part of each issue was devoted entirely to advertisements which, while appreciated, due to the "rotation" almost entirely from the appearance of the magazine. Having profited, what are we going to do next year? We will have to make a decision of something, not other than the above amount did seem collectable. Therefore, the contracts for advertising which were dealt with in the above amount did seem collectable. Therefore, the contracts for advertising which were signed in the above amount did seem collectable. The accomplishings of the organized college graduates up to the present time have been far from negligible. Alumni associations in some of the older universities date over a hundred years; in fact, the first effect of alumni work, a record exists since "the establishment of close organizations at Yale in 1812. The idea developed slowly and consistently.

At the present day, the foundations of the most of the larger universities and of the co-operative organizing and functioning with a certain firmness in institutions, and, had it not been as to adopted a full-time alumni revenue officer in fact, the first effect of alumni work, a record exists since "the establishment of close organizations at Yale in 1812.
