Freshmen Bury Algebra

In true German style the Class of 1933 announced that on the evening of February fourth they buried the class algebra. This is the term that the freshman class has always feared to enter for several years and the class deserts a good deal of credit for their undaunted per- sistance in successfully churning the sophomore.

St. Stephen's Five Losses

A smart, brilliant crowd watched and waited eagerly to see the Lowell Textile squad which has been in use for the past ten or more years, finally has been discarded. In its place has been instituted, a system now in use in various other colleges. The change took place at the begin- ning of the current season.

Each draft in number is as is not always the case. But, whereas the previous min- utes served only to preserve a seating arrangement in some de- gree regular and constant, they are now used as a means of arran- ging attendance. During the ser- vice the chapel marler, at we know not what inconvenience to those who care carefully up and down and across the channel and checks off on a chart the numbers of those se- ated, which are not occupied. The men assigned those places are marked absent. A further change has been made throughout the semester, he now hands them in to the Wardens' office at the end of each week.

St. Stephen's Five Wins

One of the most exciting events ever played on the St. Stephen's court was seen here this afternoon. St. Stephen's met Lowell Textile with a score of 10. The St. Stephen's, with Captain Williams in command, fought an uphill battle all the way, finally getting a well-earned victory against the aggressive Lowell Textile squad by a decide- nut minute tally.

The first period was anybody's game. At the start of the second period the St. Stephen's squad would have predicted by the skilled in intelligent passing. Coach Leake deserves credit for preserving his strongest combination against Lowell Textile. The enthusiasm of the game was much appreciated by the large crowd of St. Stephen's fans. The final score was 10-0.

Radical Change In Method

Of Taking Chapel Attendance

The method of taking chapel at- tendance by tallying colored slips, which has been in use for the past ten years or more, finally has been discarded. In its place has been instituted, a system now in use in various other colleges. The change took place at the begin- ning of the current semester.

Each draft in number is as is not always the case. But, whereas the previous min- utes served only to preserve a seating arrangement in some de- gree regular and constant, they are now used as a means of arran- ging attendance. During the ser- vice the chapel marler, at we know not what inconvenience to those who care carefully up and down and across the channel and checks off on a chart the numbers of those se- ated, which are not occupied. The men assigned those places are marked absent. A further change has been made throughout the semester, he now hands them in to the Wardens' office at the end of each week.

There is a great deal of campus activity this week as is well known, for the change is a great joy. There is a large body of opinion in favor of it, there is too great a lack of a factor of error in the new method, and the matter has been discussed in the school meeting. It has been suggested as well that, in the present difficult times, the reference of such minor matters as that place is hardly wise. One de- fensive advantage of the present system is that a certain amount of the work of the students goes toward a certain amount of the work of the students, and consequently the work of the students in a certain amount of the work of the students, and consequently the work of the students.

I believe this method of doing things is quite a step up from the old method of doing things, and I think it will be a great joy to the students and faculty.

St. Stephen's Five Wins

In no uncertain terms the var- iant handiwork of the Lowell Textile squad this afternoon by a score of 10-0. Led by Captain Williams, the St. Stephen's five unseated the most convincing victory of the season. The visiting team, heaviest de- fended from the starting point, were read out of the game at that point, and the contest ended with the outcome of the game decided.

Credit for the well-earned victory is equally shared between the credit goes to Leake, Ewalt, Woodruff, Burgin, Ewalt, Mit- ton, Fried, Reid, Kaless and Parkes.

The game was marked by hard clearing on both sides, and intelligent passing on the part of both teams. The defense was made particularly enjoyable by the splendid gallery of an able- in. The line-ups:

The Science Requirement

To anyone who is even casually interested in the sciences, the recent faculty meeting that discussed the second science as a prerequisite to graduation seems to be a step in the wrong direction. An important fact remains: that the general trend is to reduce the number of required courses, giving the individual a better chance to develop along his own particular interest. This is an excellent scheme, nevertheless, the average undergraduate who comes here being of course not the ability to choose what is best for him. He takes what he has to take and no more, and yet, it is as if he could ask to be excused from any class. The student who has attempted to obtain an original copy of the Greek or Latin text of this interesting paper, no original it has come to light.

The first reprint of the 1800 issue was made around 1883, and since that time there have been twenty-one additional reprints, including the Library of Congress reprint in an effort to check up the difficulty of the material. So, it is not at all surprising that a century later, the manuscript was struck of at the time of a copy. It later developed that publisher of the manuscript was found to be easily determined by the quality of the paper that it used in reprinting them. It can be seen by comparing the paper of the original with that of the manuscript, that the typography of the reprints is distinctly modern compared with that of any original copies, no original it has come to light.

The Science Requirement

Miss Mildred Dilling, celebrated for her play which won the Whiting and Rosen of the dinner given by President and Mrs. Hoover last season, will appear here Feb. 8. That was the second time that Miss Dilling had the honor of playing at the White House. Her name played there in January when the President and Mrs. Hoover entertained for Chief Justice and Mrs. Hughes and Miss Dilling played at the White House during the previous administration.

Of her last appearance at the White House, she said the key with it, that so Mr. Hoover might open it for her. Her reply was, "Oh, I wouldn't have Hoover to bother about that. The expression can open it for me."

Evidently Miss Dilling did not know that the President and Mrs. Hoover are the other one. I had been chief doorkeeper and master of ceremonies in the White House for twenty years.

Dr. Bell To Write On Education

Dr. Bell was recently invited to be one of the contributors to the Annual Book of the National Society for the Study of Education. Dr. Bell will also be writing on the future possibilities in liberal arts education. A few of the other contributors are Pres. Lowell of Harvard, Pres. Hildreth of Haverford, and Dr. Theodore Roosevelt.

The Annual will be issued some time in the spring.

On Atheism

"Student atheism is not a sign of intellectual development. On the contrary, and as a matter of fact, it is a sign of philosophical illiteracy," says Dr. David Starr Jordan, a member of the School of Theology; "Atheism is a form of thought which places the mind in a position of等待和 (Continued From Last Month)

There have been marathon flagpole sitters, marathon tennis matches, golf matches, sword matches, marathon dance things-amages, marathon non-stop flights of refueling and non-fueling types, but the last great craze has been the Colburn-Eastern European Marathon Bridge Contest. Whatever the outcome of that, it is now seen quite clearly except that Mrs. Colburn won the show. Every so often she would arrest charity bidders, benefit operas, and the other worthy causes of which she was the sponsor.

 fick down her hair, pin a bunch of orchids to her right shoulder and step in to make a fourth. Whatever she did, the opposition became rattled, and she had no trouble in filling the bases and then knocking the pack over the fence to send the boys home.

But all this is aside from the main cause of the game. It was a game of principle. The people who played the game were merely apostles of the great cause for which they stood. In the old days miniature armies used to fight it to determine the superiority of Catholicism and Protestantism. So it was that these two couples waged the $20,000 battle to determine the superiority of the Approach bid system or the old truth system. They should have had an easier time in these times even the Federal Reserve System won't work.

Whatever system did win will be the subject of discussion for the future followers of the many a port of modified card-stalking. But the fact remains that the sport is dying out. Your humble servant has gone into the subject rather extensively and discovered that bridge is actually on the second floor of one of the bases and then knocking the pack over the fence to send the boys home.

Not long ago there were eighteen young men and women at a rather informal party. The new

On Business Conditions

There are still people who read the financial sections of the newspapers. On Thursday morning last, there was an article in the Wall Street Journal about the state of the economy. It was a sober reflection on the current state of affairs, offering little hope for a quick recovery.
