SCENE I

At the head of an old fashioned hallway is seen a large door, through whose panes the early morning sun is streaming. The walls of the hall are enamelled white, the floor of polished hard wood with a few rugs well arranged over its surface. A wide staircase leads from an upper story and a broad door opens to the rest of the house.

[Enter Sims, yawning.]

SIMS: Well, if there ain’t another day. I reckon it’ll just be like the others here lately. Law, just trouble evah day, evah day, evah day. [Goes to the door, opens it, and stands looking out.] Must be this country folks’ would go home and give a man time to relax. I reckon it’ll be just like the others here late.

JUDGE TRENHOLME: Good Morning, Sims. That’s the Morning Jeffersonian you bought ain’t throwed the paper out in the grass again after all the times I done told him to put it on the gallery. Just look at it, all blew to pieces and wet with dew. Old Jedge will raise the devil like as usual. I is going to swat some of these impudent young town niggers some one of these days, and that lazy paper-boy in particular. Reckon there ain’t no hope for the African race see in’ the way and white folks expecting more and more.

Sims, that’s the Morning Jeffersonian you bought ain’t throwed the paper out in the grass again after all the times I done told him to put it on the gallery. Just look at it, all blew to pieces and wet with dew.

[Steps out on the gallery.]

At this point Judge Trenholme comes down the stairs. He is a gentlemen considerably past middle age with white hair and closely clipped white mustaches and goatee, dressed in a neat gray suit. He comes down the stairs polishing his nose glasses with his handkerchief. Upon reaching the ground floor he notices Sims.

JUDGE TRENHOLME: Good Morning, Sims, that’s the Morning Jeffersonian you have?

SIMS: Yas suh, Jedge, but i’ is feared it’s wreckin’ my constitution. I got to be careful; I ain’t a delicate man no more.

JUDGE TRENHOLME: Good Morning, Sims, that’s the Morning Jeffersonian you have?

SIMS: Yas suh, Jedge, but i’ is feared it is wet on account of the wuthless nigger... which delivers it throwin' it on the grass. I's sorry.

TRENHOLME: Oh, that's all right, Sims. Impudent young people again?

SIMS: Yas suh, Jedge, shore is. Many a time have I told that yellsah boy to put it on the gallery where it would keep dry, and I axed him yesterday, "Now lookee here, you, is you going to put that where I say or is you ain't? Is you going to throw that paper on the lawn again? Answer quick, because I is shorely going to smack you." And he said he was ain't but these town niggers—

TRENHOLME: Well, that's all right, Sims, is any of the rest of the family up?

SIMS: Miss Martha is in the garden, suh.

Miss Trenholme runs lightly up the gallery steps at this juncture, carrying an armful of roses. She is a young girl of about twenty, with dark hair and eyes, slightly olive complexion with a great deal of natural color. She is dressed in filmy white, arms and neck bare. She runs up and kisses her father.

MARTHA: Good morning, Daddy dear.

TRENHOLME: Good morning, sweet little girl, you don't give those roses a fair show by holding them so close to your beamling little face; makes them look rather colorless and faded. How are your flower children today?

MARTHA: Now, Daddy! But look at this Mariscal Neil and these Malmaisons. And I believe that new Tea Rose is going to be double. If it does may I have more?

Mrs. Trenholme, a middle aged lady, descends the stairs at this point, followed by Erskine, a well groomed, good looking young man of about twenty-five.

TRENHOLME: Why of course, sweetheart you know your old father well enough for that. [Kisses his wife and nods to his son.] Mother and I hope those white ones are not bride's roses for our little girl.

MRS. TRENHOLME: Now, Robert, please don't talk so foolishly. By the way, Martha, what time did young Bascombe leave last night? I think you are seeing too much of him of late. I do not approve of him at all. People will begin to think it is serious. And if you want roses before breakfast, let Bertha pick them for you. The morning dew would not help the whiteness of your aims at all.

TRENHOLME: Oh, Mother, let the child alone. She is young and deserves all the attention the young whelps of this town can pay her. Can't say that I blame Bascombe for staying late. Remember when your father suggested that I take a little sleep before breakfast and offered me his pajamas when I was calling on you before our marriage?

MRS. TRENHOLME: Now Robert, be serious. I do not approve of young Bascombe at all. He is absolutely a nobody. Who ever heard of a Bascombe in Macon? If he were worth anything he would not be connected with the Morning Jeffersonian. I have seen his editorials and I don't think they speak well either for the Jeffersonian or Bascombe.

TRENHOLME: Mrs. Trenholme, the Jeffersonian is the acknowledged leading journal of this state. It supported my election with considerable enthusiasm. Excellent publication! And as to Bascombe, you are very much behind times. You seem never to have differentiated between the old and the new south. These are new times and strenuous ones. What we need is new young blood, the kind that goes out after broods and gets them. An over-estimated idea of gentility did very well for the day when we had hundreds of niggers to do our work, but times have changed, madame, times have changed, and we need life, life! I entirely approve of young Bascombe; he is the stuff that goes out after broods and gets them.

TRENHOLME: There you go, just what I was looking for. I had hoped to get a few minutes to read the paper before you all would have the opportunity to paw it over. [Exit all.]

SCENE II

The scene is an attractive breakfast room with French windows opening on a well kept lawn, planted with roses. The table is set with breakfast service and grape fruit. The mori seats his mother, and the judge sits behind the judge's seat and waits on the table.

TRENHOLME: If you don't mind, I'll look over the newspaper while Sims brings my coffee.

ERSKINE: But, Martha, just between you and me, I have been in bed by eleven o'clock for the last three nights.

MRS. TRENHOLME: I am coming to that. Then if you are going to be early you must either be sick or need money.

ERSKINE: But, sir, if you really wish to know, I arose early this morning in order to motor out to Colonel Morgan's plantation to see his filly "One-step." He expects to put her on the central circuit this fall and for her to run away with everything.

TRENHOLME: Knowing old Morgan's propensities for choosing a bad thing, I suspect that all that horse will run away with will be the profits of his cotton this year. Don't think so much about horses, son, it doesn't pay. Let your father advise you.

ERSKINE: Well, sir, from what Colonel Morgan says you did when you were young, you should be a fit person to give advice about losing money on horses.

TRENHOLME: Er, well; you lose too much money foolishly. You remember that you lost two hundred dollars to Williston at poker Monday. I doubt if a person of your apparent intelligence is capable of mastering any game.

ERSKINE: But, sir, if you remember, you said I was a chip off the old block when I relieved Will Trask of three hundred last Friday.

TRENHOLME: Oh, forget it! [reading] I am beginning to think that something drastic must be done with Mexico, um—

[Erskine removes the grape-fruit and serves the rest of the breakfast.]

ERSKINE: May I have the sporting page, father?

TRENHOLME: There you go, just what I have been complaining about. Never a thought do you give to anything serious. Of course you want to see the results at Havre de Grasse or New Orleans. It is a shame the opportunities the generation of today neglect in the excellent periodicals of the time. What do you know about the coal shortage? What do you know about Emma Goldman? What do you know about anything worth while? Nothing! The defense of the peace treaty the Jeffersonian gives this morning is really masterful.
ERSKINE: Well, then, father, I would be very grateful to have you give me an explanation of the workings of the proposed League of Nations. I haven't been quite able to get it entirely clear.

TRENHOLME: Er, but—oh why don't you get something for yourself, Erskine? you shouldn't lean on me for all of your ideas. Here, take a piece of the paper.

[Judge Trenholme gives Erskine a sheet of the paper, retaining the rest. Erskine gives Martha a sly wink from behind his sheet, which causes her to giggle. The judge, unconscious of the pantomine, looks dignified and reads on. Erskine turns over the page and evidently finds something of interest which he reads intently.]

ERSKINE: Speaking of the excellence of the Jeffersonian, father, did you happen to see this comment on your last decision? [Hands the judge his paper.]

TRENHOLME: Hum, what is this? [Reads.] "AN INSULT TO JUSTICE! Judge R. E. Trenholme Hands Down Decision in People vs. Railway Company. Probably the greatest hoax of jurisprudence the people of Georgia have had foisted on them was the decision of R. E. Trenholme sitting in the circuit court at Macon yesterday in the case of People vs. the Railroad Company. There was no doubt in the minds of the most prominent legal authority in court yesterday but that the decision would be against the railroad. The way in which Judge Trenholme disregarded the most convincing evidence, the way that the best established legal precedent was set aside was a source of astonishment to many of the learned counsel present in the court room. The Jeffersonian is not exactly sure what Judge Trenholme's motive was in this black-judgment of law and justice, but we are informed by Major Eustis, Independent Democrat candidate for the bench, that—"

[Judge Trenholme slams the paper on the table, and proceeds to work himself into a rage.]

TRENHOLME: Why the unprincipled libelous liars! How can they dare to make such an attack as this? What can be their grounds for such an article? Why the evidence was so strong in favor of the railroad company that no unprejudiced magistrate could decide otherwise. That article is a blank falsehood and I shall have the Jeffersonian arraigned for contempt of court as surely as my name is Trenholme. I'll teach them to soil the judicial emprise with their smirk! I always have known the Jeffersonian to be an unreliable sheet! Who ever subscribed to it in this house? It is a shame that newspapers should be allowed to pervert public opinion as they do! I tell you, I will not stand for it! And to throw that shyster (Eustis) in my face—!

[The telephone rings in another room which Sims goes to answer. Re-enter Sims.]

SIMS: Mr. Bascombe would like to speak with Miss Martha, please.

TRENHOLME: Why the nerve of the impudent young puppy! Martha, positively forbid that you let Bascombe injure my house! I'll not have him here and I'll not stand for you having anything to do with him! Is that clear? You should exercise some care in choosing your friends! Remember that you owe something to your family when you decide otherwise. Finally when you wish to take up with some young idiot whose name no one ever heard before.

MRS. TRENHOLME: Now, Robert, keep cool. Remember what you said to the child a few moments ago about young Bascombe being a progressive young chap and that you would allow her to choose her own friends, and even her own husband.

TRENHOLME: Madame, understand that I will not be brooked and bayed in my own household. And while I think of it, I wish you would discharge that black of yours and get a nigger that can make a decent cup of coffee. The breakfast this morning was particularly poor. Good morning!

[Mrs. Trenholme leaves hastily.]

MRS. TRENHOLME: Children, don't mind your father.

ROOMMATE: Why did you stay up so late last night arguing with that fella.

Other Roommate: I was trying to convince him that Socialism is not the same as Arachism.

T. STEPHEN'S is a true Mother to all her Sons—both graduate and Alumni—and she expects them to be equally as true to her. The Undergraduate is distant from the Alumnus only in the material matter of years. But, both have one call in common, the heartiest support.

She brings to point out a few of the ways by which we can best forward the interests of our College. As the president has well said, "The men who are here this year are of a mighty good sort, downright, out of door, clean living, straight-thinking, virile men." The higher standard of scholarship demanded of us requires much of our time; but, it is the spare moments which, if we only will, we can turn into so many forces of paramount worth in the amelioration of our Alma Mater.

We must be sturdy advocates of her greatness, even to the point of boasting. Do we not owe this to the institution that cherishes us and is doing all in her power to make us upright men of true worth? There is everything to gain and nothing to lose by speaking well of St. Stephen's. On the other hand, there is everything to lose, and nothing to gain by speaking ill of her. If we are apologetic, and inclined to belittle our college, she will be judged and criticized by our utterances whether they be right or wrong. We must subject "crabbing" and encourage the praise that she merits.

Men of St. Stephen's! One of our greatest opportunities in the fulfillment of our obligations to the College lies in the various campus activities. The Dragon Club is well playing her part, and the Glee Club with its intended concert tour in view is bringing the outer world to fuller realization of what the College is and stands for. THE MESSAGER, your paper, the official mouth-piece of the student body, is a bulwark of strength in stirring up our now dormant friends and in bringing us many new ones. And, Athletics, too, will play a prominent part. With our Baseball team playing the various colleges of the Hudson Valley, we are sure to make people realize that St. Stephen's ranks high with the other colleges in the University of the State of New York. We have these organizations. Now, we must back them with our heartiest support. Our capabilities are limited; but, where we fall short in one department, we may be especially well qualified in another. It is for each individual to find out how he can best serve his Alma Mater and, having found his strong point, to develop it zealously.

The position of the Alumnus as a man among men is full of fertile and manifold opportunities to praise the numerous benefits of St. Stephen's. They are constantly in touch with young men intending to enter college. It is to them that we look for many of our future students. The St. Stephen's of to-day is not the St. Stephen's of the past. It is worthy of all the praise that they can proclaim. And, for this very reason, we look for their more frequent visits with us that they may imbibe some of our enlivening spirit and, satiated with this spirit, may guide straight-thinking athletic, Christian men to our portals.

"In unity there is strength," is an old but important truism. With the Undergraduates doing their best to uplift and to maintain the high standard of the College and the alumni cooperating with them by furnishing seed to this our fertile ground, St. Stephen's will rise to a protuberance heretofore unattained.

The FOOTBALL season has been over for some time, but this is the first real opportunity for words of praise and commendation from "THE MESSAGER" for the football team. The bitter gloom of disappointment settled down upon the team playing the various colleges of the State and New York. We have these organizations. Since the opening of the football season, an intense interest in this particular phase of college athletics has been stimulated by the promise that, as a fitting culmination of our obligations bravely and manfully, and have given abundantly of your experience in football and you have shown as you are. You have done nobly during the season just closed. You have worked unceasingly and have given abundant spirit of your work. Many of you have had little or no experience in football and you have shown yourselves to be full of "pep" by facing in combat such a heavy and experienced team as Eastman,—such commendable spirit that it drew words of honest praise and admiration from their players.

St. Stephen's is proud of you—your Alma Mater glories in you; and she hopes that your true spirit may not die in the face of discouragement, but that it will live and grow and finally come to its just reward.

Among those present were: President and Mrs. Bell, Dean Davidson, Doctor and Mrs. Upton, Professor McDonald, Professor Fowler, Professor and Mrs. Kaltenbach, Professor Cook, Doctor and Mrs. Williams, Miss Southern and Mrs. Daniels. During the summer, the "Bungalow" was renovated and improved. The building was painted without and within, a spacious fireplace was constructed, adding greatly to the attractiveness of the living-room, electric lights were installed, and a number of other minor changes made. Some new draperies have effected a marked change in the appearance of the interior of the building.

Leonard, '23 was initiated into the rites and mysteries of Eulexian on Friday, November 7th. Following the initiation, a banquet was held in the Chapter House, at which, besides the Active Chapter, there were present the following Alumni: Bleecker '76, Pooley '08, Stoddard 1000, Wilson '14, and Leonard '14.

The following men were pledged to Eulexian on November 24th: Anderson, Sp. Fisher '23, Golding, '23, Howes '23, Hubs '23, and Libby '23.

Junior Prom.

The first formal dance of the year, the Junior Prom., was given to the Seniors on the evening of Friday, November 21st in Ludlow-Willink Hall by the Class of '21. This occasion, holding usually in the past a minor place in the social functions here at St. Stephen's, was conducted so efficiently and so thoughtfully, and had in attendance so large and enthusiastic a gathering, that it is rather difficult to express the appreciation of the Undergraduate Body in terms fittingly complimentary. If hitherto-to fore doubt existed whether or not the Juniors have lived up to their motto, "Carpe Occasum," it should be clearly now that they have positively seized the occasion in their contribution of one of the prettiest and best dances here in recent years.

Time abundantly spent in the Hall at the expense of Greek, perhaps, during the days prior to the dance, and labour diligently applied probably contributed to the execution prevalent on the Campus last year, "Labor vinct omnia," produced of spacious Ludlow Hall picturesque in appearance, dignified and home-like in aspect, artistically decorated in various colors, with the Class colors maroon and grey in predominance.

The pretty music, the atmosphere of sociability, the delightful intermission for refreshments, altogether characterized the event pre-eminently exquisite to a remarkable degree of fascination. The first public display of the Class Coat-of-arms proved to be quite an attraction on the south wall of the Hall.

The patronesses were: Mrs. Bell, Mrs. Kaltenbach, Miss Southern, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Daniels, Mrs. Kidd, Miss Cruger, Mrs. Aldrich, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Davidson and Mrs. Upton. The following were the guests of students: Misses Henrietta Rowe, Julia Decker, and Helen Smillie of Rhinebeck, N. Y.; Misses Marion Barritt and Violet Pierson of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Misses Lorene Stengast of Pasaica, N. J.; Miss Mary E. Gould of Hunter's College, N. Y.; Misses Elizabeth McCormack, Mary Dern, Jane Lewis, Mary Gage and Christine Morris, of Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Misses Grace and Bessie Delaney and Lillian B. Clark of Hudson, N. Y.; Misses Dorothy Harper and Alice Spangler of Red Hook, N. Y.; Miss Margaret Debas of Anthy, N. Y.; Misses Elizabeth DuFlon and Lila Phillips of Kingston, N. Y.; Miss Ruby Hall of Ballston Spa., N. Y.; Misses Katherine and Julia Kelley of New Paltz Normal School, New Paltz, N. Y.; Messrs. Keedwell, Stretch, Alonzo Wood, Hartsett and Haines were also guests of the Class '21.

In Other Colleges

HARVARD Medical School has 300 students and 265 instructors, and thus every class contains but one or two students. The large number of teachers is possible because 91 receive no salary and the rest an average of $200.00 per year.

The Freshman Class at Hobart does not appear to be very slow for it has as members Speed, Swift, Fast and Legege.

Thirty members of the football squad of the University of California are "toting" a football wherever they go. The coach gave each man on the squad a pigskin, with orders to keep it with him all the time, under penalty of being barred from the squad. At meals, at classes, at dances, at parties, on the streets, every place, even in bed at night, the men keep the football tucked under their arms.

Rochester's radio-telegraph installation is going forward steadily, and the University will soon be able to receive messages from the high power stations in France, Italy, Germany and England.

Oratorical Contest

ON Saturday evening, November 15th, 1921, there was an oratorical contest held in the Reading Room of Ludlow and Willink Hall. This Freshman oratorical contest was the first of its kind for a great while in St. Stephen's College and as the first it was exceptionally good. Six Freshmen entered for the finals and though the first prize was almost unanimous it was quite difficult for the judges to decide the second place. The judges were Professors Davidson, McDonald and Kaltenbach, and they were very just in their decisions. Brown, Sp., was awarded the first prize of twenty dollars in cash, and Leonard "23 won the second prize of five dollars. It was a very interesting contest and the audience, enjoying it immensely, regretted that all the competitors could not each have received a prize.

Hallowe'en

It was a dark and stormy night
But just for those outside
For Preston Hall was full of light
At Holy Hallow tide.

The President in pirate's suit
Was just one huge success
While others took their parts along
Just wonderfully I guess.

There was the pirate's dazzling knife
The Philosopher's long beard
The Chifman's rig out was fine
And Bishop's were revered.

There were jockeys, tailors farmers, chefs, Labor and capatist
Convict old lady debuteante
Saint Nellie still unliked.

The jailer and hun soldier
Also the red cross Nurse
While the bishop and his acolyte
The ritual did rehearse.

There were the Palm Beach folks to kill
Also the robe du mint
The lady with her dazzling pearls
The little girl so cute to see.

Then over there to Babylon
When Darius was its king
But Cleo the orator
Was really quite the thing.

This was a glorious Hallowe'en
With colored minstrels' jast
We're looking for another soon
To make the next the best.
