A talk prepared for the 1970 Conference of the British Association of University Teachers of Economics, Queens University, Belfast

Tuesday April 7, 1970.

Harry: I'd really appreciate your comments - him /Hy.

Hy - sorry, but I'm not very impressed. You are already drawing on strands on Keynes's thought, but you don't really make clear what the essential differences are between your model and the ones you are attacking, and you spend a lot of time on formal model-building using rather tired building-blocks.
