I LOVE YOU SO MUCH I SHARE I ISN’T

What kind of animal has me in its name.

Who is that in my mouth.

Make the sound of someone speaking.

Spare body parts.

The catch of the glee assorts the owl’s hour.

I always want to talk about owls.

Be kind to too she.

Tying shoelaces in the trees.

Down in the cellar the black light goes.

Infamy of riding coats our fox deceas’d.

Children dawdle their way to school grownups drive fast past.

Things you notice how the keyboard cheats.

Shadow of the bowing arm stains his starched shirtfront.

Is there a nearby animal to speak.

Varicose profits in a downturn hum.

I star my cable box delete to who.
This is of course how it yearns to speak.

Come back loving or come back tall.

Use me every day or silent night.

Of course this is an island.

You can’t go any distance without getting wet.

Everything means something else too.

That is the problem with water and oceans more so.

Sunday jogs but bless relaxes.

Care for I share don’t mean me.

Look at the cost of that old car.

Moneychangers in the temple stubble on the jowl.

The sloping of the maid.

I’m tired of religion it has to lie down.
Frictionless intercourse the maiden’s smile.

Not Caravaggio but mother naked anyhow.

Thus I refute approximate shadows.

Without knowing what the word means.

Scum the light leaves behind.

Three women in black dresses pull people’s legs open.

Mean mind me well.

Taking a risk is what this all is about.

Sit on the sink and hear the mirror.

All the famous women of the safe search off.

Suddenly the sun at midnight.

It is well to be well past midnight.

The book opens to an almost unfamiliar alphabet.

From the open book strong light falls out.

Light has a tendency to come down from.

We have a tendency to be some kind of ladder.

Which was the other way when it began.
Always the alternatives abound.
Bad child ignoring mother’s piña colada drinks milk.

This is certainly the same as where I come.

The bottom of a barrel stained with olive brine.

Luwian alphabets strung across the Bosporus.

Ishmael was black.

Aeneas and his Trojans became Etruscans not Romans.

The Romans came later and killed them most.

You learn to read by thinking against the words.

Think against whatever they tell you in school.  (2 May 2011)

Try to catch the shadow of the Speaking Angel.

Furies are as hard to catch as angels.
Sinuous a-slither in black around us in us.

When we fail by failing to acknowledge failure.

And rain comes from the sun.
The king of a thing stands up.
No government confesses it did wrong.
Maintaining the lie is the machine that wrecks it.

Think of penitent Oedipus.

Think of what it means to lose the people’s will.

What can I know about these moral things.

Always wanting giving onward/

Stay away until another say.

Change a blue habit into mindful plum.

Organ voluntary fills our empty stories.

Lissome listeners float a capella.

Hear for once with you own ears.
