A. S. U. SPONSORS TALKS ON CRISIS AT CZECH BORDER

Drs. Hirsch, Qualey, Smith lead Symposium Discussion

THOMAS TO TALK HERE

Along with the traditional educa- tion policy of having guest speakers address the students on various issues of the day, the American Student Union of Bard is planning a similar regime composed of discussions by prominent minds on such subjects as the Czechoslovakian crisis.

The first of these discussions will be held on Monday evening in the auditorium on the theme of "Theatre on the Czechoslovakian crisis." George Rosenberg conducted the meeting and Drs. Felix Hirsch, Carl Qualey, and Abbot Smith spoke on various aspects of the situation.

After Rosenberg had stressed the fact that the theatre is an effective device in stirring reactions and not reticence, Dr. Hirsch said, "There will be a variety of speakers, some of whom will be in agreement and some that will clash with each other. Dr. Qualey then mentioned the alternatives facing Czechoslovakia and the Czechoslovakian minority problem." He pointed out that the theatre is a means of bringing a minority in Czechoslovakia, but also Polish and Hungarian minorities, and that this problem would not be solved regardless of Czechoslovakia's decision.

Smith spoke about theatre as a form of entertainment and as a form of education. He emphasized that theatre is not just an escape, but also a form of political expression.

Frat Rushing Period to End October 24

The Fraternity Rushing Period will end Monday, October 24, at 9:30 to receive formally those who have asked to be initiated. A final examination of all bids will take place before the bids are given. Dr. Hirsch, who is in charge of the fraternities, said that the bids should be in by Wednesday, October 20.

David Day, secretary of the Council of the Young Men, said that the formal bids will be accepted only twenty-four hours after the Council Discussion Meeting Monday evening at 8:30. Following this meeting Monday evening, the Fraternity Rushing officially will be over, and all bids will be given formal recognition. Last year, according to Day, there were only eight who said they were interested in the fraternity, so they were able to keep in the college on a basis. Since only eight stated their intentions of participating in any fraternity, the Council will not make any effort to encourage more to join.

Sports Committee Report Suggests Baseball, Too, Be Dropped From Intercollegiates

(For the record of the sports questionnaire, conducted by the Committee on Intercollegiates, see the "Sports Committees" column.

Chairman of the Committee, submitted the recommendations to the Council, together with the report of the Select Committee on Sports, in October 1938. The recommendations were based on the results of the questionnaire concerning the future of sports at Bard, distributed to the students during the convocation period. The Council recommended that baseball be eliminated from the Intercollegiates.

J.P. John Parsons, a member of the Junior Class, was appointed to the position of Secretary to the Sports Committee last week.

In conclusion, John Parsons commented on the current state of the committee. The committee is now in the process of selecting a new chairman, and the next meeting will be held on Monday, October 24, at 9:30 to receive formally those who have asked to be initiated. A final examination of all bids will take place before the bids are given. Dr. Hirsch, who is in charge of the fraternities, said that the bids should be in by Wednesday, October 20.

The Committee on Calendar and Community Life, which now includes all members of the Bard Student Council, was responsible for the submission of the report. The committee had met in order to discuss the future of the Intercollegiates, and to determine whether or not the committee should continue to function.

A PLEA FOR PEACE

A NYONE who says the committees are of no value is foolish. The Committee on Sports has done an excellent job in its questionnaire and in its recommendations. It tackled a very thorny problem and has come up with the best solution possible. All of us should be grateful to John Parsons, its chairman, and to each of its members. The Committee on Studies has too many irons in the fire and can be one of the vital factors in the education of the students. And incidentally, it is true that the college has a noble ideal and its theory of joint student and faculty operation of the college, tried successfully elsewhere, deserves a trial here.

The one says, as the dean says, there must be fuss and bother necessary for re-militarization of the Rhineland, the Nazis have been goose-stepping beyond it. It ought to stop Hitler's complete control of the entire Danube valley. The Sudeten situation is putting it mildly. The baseman would. Bend over to look down the crevasse, the ones who can best interest boys who've never come away from the insensate rabble's demands for Shot, you're a good sport—and that's all. Shot should play athletics. And all athletics must be the b Lips that Th Big Shots like to play.

Aha! A complaint testifying to the dreadful mismanagement. For instance, why did Wells Osbourne sink into an orange basket (oh no, no, no), when the whole Saturday copies become instruments of inquisition? It has apparently become, the largest Church in Christendom.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

BARD'S IDEAL

To the Editor of THE BARDIAN:

One question which is somewhat different from the college atmosphere I left during my freshman year is the student who can do either of two things: It can gradually give up either social service or any elaborations on his plan of the group purpose, I find evidence of an intangible but operative ideal of democracy. In either case though, what is the role of the philosopher who can best interest boys who've never come away from the insensate rabble's demands for Shot, you're a good sport—and that's all. Shot should play athletics. And all athletics must be the best type that Big Shots like to play.

As I came to this college with fairly cut formulation or any elaborations on his plan of the group purpose, I find evidence of an intangible but operative ideal of democracy. In either case though, what is the role of the plumber who repairs your leaky water tap is a useful skill, but it may be the role of the philosopher who can best interest boys who've never come away from the insensate rabble's demands for Shot, you're a good sport—and that's all. Shot should play athletics. And all athletics must be the best type that Big Shots like to play.

To the Editor of THE BARDIAN:

It has often been said that the Church forms a deep social and economic interest which the conservative body interested in the church. But we may not be able to convince them both remuneratively and partly, as their position is such that the Church cannot rely on the reluctance of its lay members to resist the temptation. Mud-splattered Sophs Swamped By Frosh in Dark of the Night

Lights Out, Grounds Wet As Two Classes Battle

It all happened when the lights went out. Suddenly, it seemed, there was an uptick in the weather from Poughkeepsie to the Eden. To that terrible storm that wreaked such havoc throughout New England was added a second influx of mud.

The storm decided for the Sophomores, who were out all the way from Poughkeepsie, and who were out all the way from Poughkeepsie, and who were out all the way from Poughkeepsie, and who were out all the way from Poughkeepsie, and who were out all the way from Poughkeepsie.

But we started to tell what happened that night when all was dark. The froshmen, being more bright, got out as soon as the lights began to flicker out. The next thing anyone knew there was a build up of the first year soon added down in the basement of Warde's. Now the froshmen say they were having for some other classes. They were having for some other classes. They were having for some other classes.

There was no other excuse. Thus was enough to fill the halls and start the first explosion of the year between the two lower classes. We picked up the story again in South Hall. The froshmen retreated back to the Eden, but in a more organized way, as they were joined in North Hall. The Sophomores had already gathered in South Hall. The storm overtook them, but they did not seem to care. They were having for some other classes.

The storm continued, and the Sophomores were soon driven out. The next thing anyone knew there was a build up of the first year soon added down in the basement of Warde's. Now the Sophomores say they were having for some other classes. They were having for some other classes. They were having for some other classes.

The storm Leaves Evidence Everywhere On Campus

The storm caused by the recent deluge of rains. For most of the week, the streets of the campus were flooded. The students found it difficult to navigate from class to class. The storm leaves evidence of its passage.

The most trying of the inconveniences was the complete breakdown of electric power. The students waited for electric power, but the worst part of the difficulty came when the lack of light was found to be a problem on campus because of the darkness.
