2-2014

febF2014

Robert Kelly
Bard College

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.bard.edu/rk_manuscripts

Recommended Citation
http://digitalcommons.bard.edu/rk_manuscripts/335

This Manuscript is brought to you for free and open access by the Robert Kelly Archive at Bard Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Robert Kelly Manuscripts by an authorized administrator of Bard Digital Commons. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@bard.edu.
1.
The mercy means it
as well it might.
Drowned Somerset.
Parched Disneyland.
This canto celebrates the sentimental names my child loves me with Abandon. I’ve been done. Aladdin.
The law is hidden in the stone.
In every stone for Christ’s sake that floats above us midsummer eve butterfly intransigence, love, did you ever
will a flower?

Raisin
Street was raison
once upon no time,
we Irish made short work of reason —
but with raisins
we can bake scones
or soak in whiskey for winter tea.

For winter
never ends around here,
the ice on the Neva,
even the Dnepr far South choked with white dreams, forget my vocabulary it’s all I have to offer in a poor man’s mouth — and if you’re born poor you’re poor all your life no matter how many dollars you have — the smell of poverty never leaves, likewise the juniper aroma of born rich, turn it off and turn it back on reboot the senses
in the springtime way the soap of godly presence washes doubt away —
this is your skin on my hand.
2,
Polymer means rabid shareholders, America starts across the river this mini-continent of ours
—from Maine to the Hudson, the St. Lawrence to Long Island Sound — is not America, or not yet.
America is always across the river, America can never be here with all those angry people, I take my stand loud
on this rowboat republic, this transparent fantasy of a place, neither West nor East and never South, but what are we with our French and Portuguese
our little Latin and less droits de l'homme, my dead grandmother taught me
English in the cradle.
3.

The sound must come from far away.
We had a Sun once in our skies, a customhouse on every corner a borderguard at the entry to the mind — how deep his sleep in that fur collar untroubled even by Kafka’s fleas! — no need to make us tremble in the wilderness a morning takes care of itself, fried egg sunrise in cloud deep lovable imagery of the only life life we dare to have,
and there he is with his ‘we’ again agent of a vanished state, Ottoman ambassador. envoy from the Khan, I make home movies
in the old-fashioned mind, colors faded to begin with but oh her white bathing suit at Rockaway before I ever learned to see the images were waiting there for me — and there he is with his ‘me’ again.

27 February 2014
THE SHADOW

The ambiguity pervades language to live to love

The Other is the one beside me.

It is not good for woman to be alone so she took man from inside herself.

It is not good for man or woman to be alone so they took the shadow of themselves, the shadow is the one always beside me, and man took the Other out of his side.

We are taken from each other's shadows, born of the other into a strange sense of self.

I thought it was Eve, or Life, or Love, or Eve was Adam's brother but they told me the letters were all wrong, only sounded that way to someone who did not know the language.

I do not know language
but I try to let it know me.
I try to let love and live and Eve and life be beside me,

I try to take Eve out of my side.

2.
Live means let everyone live.
I can’t live if they don’t live.
I think of Donne, every death diminishes me—I can live only as long as the other does.

3.
Do you want to know what I really am?
I am the shadow I cast on the ground—walk through me and you become part of me and I of you. And we both go free.

28 February 2014
Start something else
while you can.
There is dread
to be done,
a haiku and a half,
tROUT on your line,
March over the Hill
and April sleeping,
I miss her breasts —
what a thing to say.
No I mean the exuberance of springtime
that gives way,
always gives way
and every season grieves for her, the one who spoke herself away.

28 February 2014.